Hill Tops Simpson By 17,000 Votes; Pepper Holds Lead

Roosevelt Backer Tops Jurist and 3 Others.

By PAUL MILLER,
Chief of the Associated Press Washington Bureau.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 2. (AP)—Claude Pepper, seeking renomination as Florida's junior United States Senator, built up a substantial but inconclusive lead in early Democratic primary returns tonight.

Unofficial reports from 340 of 1,496 precincts in the state gave Pepper 44,606 against 27,049 for the nearest of four opponents, Judge J. Ollie Edmunds.

The three other candidates had a total of 12,477 votes.

Pepper, who ran on a record of support of Roosevelt policies in a campaign where local issues and personalities also figured, showed great strength in the early Dade county (Miami) reports, the state's most populous county.

GUBERNATORIAL RACE

The senator took a two-to-one lead over Edmunds with 37 precincts reported. Edmunds improved his position in later returns and Edmunds' supporters had hoped for a stronger showing in rural areas.

State Senator Ernest R. Graham took an early lead and held on in the six-man contest for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. A large proportion of the early returns came from his home county, Dade.

The first 42 boxes in the attorney general's race gave J. Tom Watson, of Tampa, the incumbent, who has made a proposed anti-closed shop amendment to the state constitution a part of his campaign, a wide margin over two opponents.

In the Fourth congressional district, Representative Pat Cannon, of Miami, vigorous opponent of Roosevelt administration policies, piled up a lopsided lead early over three opponents in his bid for renomination.

RETURNS ARE SLOW

The first precinct to report tabulation of votes for delegates to the Democratic national convention showed candidates pledged to Senator Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, leading those favoring a fourth term for President Roosevelt.

Returns were slow from all parts of the state, owing chiefly to the near record-length ballot and war-clogged communications facilities.

To win outright, Pepper needed more than 50 per cent of the total vote cast in the senate field. Florida law provides for a runoff between the top two vote-getters in event of no majority.

There were six candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination and 49 candidates for Florida's 18 Democratic national convention seats — 27 pledged to Roosevelt, four unpledged and a full slate of 18 committeed to Senator Byrd.

PEPPER LAMBASTED

Pepper's opponents were J. Ollie Edmunds, county judge of Duval county (Jacksonville); Millard Conklin, Daytona Beach attorney; Alston Cockrell, Jacksonville attorney, and Finley Moore, Lake City real estate man.

All assailed "federal bureaucracy," although none criticized President Roosevelt personally. Edmunds and Conklin, however, lambasted Pepper's record of down-the-line support for most administration measures. Pepper retorted that his opponents were trying to defeat him as a means of "stabbing Roosevelt."

Local issues and personalities shared significance along with the contentions over New Deal policies, however.

Democratic nomination is considered tantamount to election in Florida. Republicans had primary contests for senatorial and gubernatorial nomination. Miles H. Draper, native Minnesotan who has practiced law in Tampa since getting his law degree from Harvard in 1923, and Henry K. Gibson, Miami attorney, who came to Florida 19 years ago from Cincinnati, sought the nomination for senator. Ben L. Acker, of Miami, a public relations consultant, and Edward T. Keenan, of Frostproof, an engineer, were gubernatorial candidates.

658,013 DEMOCRATS

A total of 658,013 Democrats were registered to vote today, along with 46,478 Republicans.

There were contests in five of the six congressional districts, only Congressman J. Hardin Peterson, of Lakeland, in the first, winning nomination without opposition. Two years ago when the state was divided into only five districts the sixth congressman was elected from the state-at-large and Representative Green, who formerly represented the second district, won the post. Green's decision to run for governor made it certain the state would have at least one new congressman even if all the other incumbents were re-elected.

New Dealers Given Healthy Margin Over Foe.

By D. HAROLD OLIVER.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 2.—(AP)—With nearly 60 per cent of the state's vote counted, Senator Lister Hill appeared tonight to have gained an unbeatable lead in his race for renomination against James A. Simpson, Birmingham attorney-state senator.

Hill had a lead of more than 17,000 in 1,352 of the state's 2,310 boxes which showed: Hill 73,044, Simpson 55,713.

These figures included returns from 61 of the state's 67 counties.

The senate's Democratic whip, seeking a second term against an opponent critical of administration domestic policies, was outdistancing Simpson in the latter's home county of Jefferson, which includes the city of Birmingham. The vote there in 104 out of 248 boxes was Hill 5,789, Simpson 3,964.

Hill was smothering his opponent in Montgomery, the senator's home county, where the vote stood 7,470 to 941 in Hill's favor in 41 out of 47 boxes.

Among the 10 candidates running for six delegate-at-large places on the state's 24-man uninstructed delegation to the Democratic national convention, Wallace D. Malone, Dothan banker and only outright opponent of a fourth term for President Roosevelt, was running ninth with 1,817 votes in 238 boxes out of 2,310. Eighteen delegates were elected by districts.

Early return in the five congressional nomination races showed three incumbent representatives trailing and two ahead. The vote:

Third District — Representative George Andrews 826, J. Hubert Farmer 1,041, in 32 out of 226 boxes.

Fourth District—Representative Sam Hobbs 2,484, Tom C. King 1,523, J. W. Wright 331 in 46 out of 231 boxes.

Fifth District — Representative Joe Starnes, 1,576, Albert Rains, 2,846, M. L. Shaddix 89, in 69 out of 291 boxes.

Seventh District — Representative Carter Manasco 2,723, J. H. Deason 2,509, Reuben L. Newton 2,353 in 95 out of 297 boxes.

Ninth District — Representative John Newsome 3,058, Luther Patrick 3,266, Hugh B. DuBose 787, and O. L. Allen 251 in 90 out of 248 boxes.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., May 2.—(AP)—United States Senator Chan Gurney held better than a two-to-one lead for Republican renomination over Lieutenant Governor A. C. Miller, who claimed Gurney "absorbed too much of the New Deal," as early returns were tabulated tonight in South Dakota's primary election.

A Republican delegate list publicly committed to Governor Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, for President also was ahead better than two-to-one over a delegate group favoring Lieutenant Commander Harold Stassen, former Minnesota Governor.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 2.—(AP) Six incumbent congressmen held leads tonight in early returns from the Indiana primary election, in which only the congressional contests were of statewide interest. Five incumbents were unopposed.

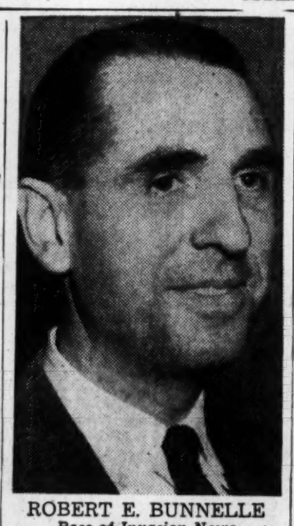

The election's distinguishing feature was the voters' absence from the polls.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 2.—(AP)—Urged by a leader to "take advantage of the rebellion against the present regime," the Arkansas Republican convention today nominated the first full slate of state candidates in 16 years and voted to send an uninstructed delegation to the Republican national convention.

The national importance attached to the Florida and Alabama primaries is indicated by the coverage given the two elections by the Associated Press.

Two of its ace political writers were assigned to the voting: Paul Miller, assistant general manager of AP and chief of AP's Washington bureau, covered the Florida election, and D. Harold Oliver, AP's White House correspondent, went to Alabama.

ROBERT E. BUNNELLE
Boss of Invasion News

LEWIS HAWKINS
AP Ace, Assigned to Fleet

AP 'Aces' To Cover Invasion

When the Allied invasion of the European continent starts, the Associated Press will have a gigantic force of reporters and photographers on the job—and they will be led by AP men who started their careers in Atlanta.

Robert Bunnelle, Lewis Hawkins, Ed Ball, Horace Court—these are some of the "Caldwell boys" on whom AP is counting for tough assignments. They're called the "Caldwell Boys" because they all started their AP careers and gained most of their training under W. E. Caldwell, veteran southern division news editor of the AP with headquarters in Atlanta.

To Bunnelle fell the chief job. He's head of the London Bureau. That means, in simple language, that he will run the whole works of covering the invasion.

HAWKINS WITH FLEET

To Ed Ball—whose wife and two children live at Eatonton, Ga.—fell the job of going with the Allied headquarters for the invasion and channelling back all the front-line news.

And to Hawkins fell the task of heading, with John A. Moroso III, the primary naval staff.

Hawkins, who went with AP after several years with The Constitution, is ranked by AP as one of its best-informed military writers. He has been in London for more than a year as one of Bunnelle's right-hand men in covering all European operations.

TEAMED IN ATLANTA

Hawkins' wife, Ruth, and their young daughter, who goes under the nickname of "Schatze," reside here on Brentwood avenue, N. E., and their son, John, is a student at Darlington School in Rome.

The team of Hawkins, Ball and Bunnelle worked together for several years in Atlanta, each holding at various times every position with the Atlanta bureau.

Others who started or "passed through" the Atlanta bureau in their AP work include E. K. Butler, who will be in charge of photographic coverage of the invasion, and Horace Court, who will be a photographer. Both served with

126 Jap Planes Lost at Truk In Powerful U. S. Carrier Blow

Churchill Tells Empire To 'Put Itself on Map'

LONDON, May 3.—(Wednesday) (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill, welcoming empire premiers to 10 Downing street, told them they were here "in the most deadly climax in the conflict of the nations, at a time when, although we need no longer fear defeat, we are making the most intense efforts to compel an early victory."

Churchill's Monday address, made public today, said he did not expect that "in the heat of war we shall reach complete solution of all problems that confront the British empire and vex mankind. But it's high time we got around the table to exchange views and ideas. . . ."

"There is a second major reason for these conversations," he said. "The commonwealth and the empire now have fighting on their side powerful allies—the Soviet Union and the great republic of the United States. It is right that the British empire in its collective aspect should put itself solidly on the map and make all the watching world realize it stands together."

CURTIN GRATEFUL TO U. S.

Prime Minister John Curtin of Australia told the conference of premiers that the "Australian people have been delivered from a mortal peril."

"This has been effected by the gallantry of the Australian and American forces, the ability of the high command, the aid of Britain and the United States, and the war effort of the Australian people," he said.

"The worldwide nature of the war placed us in the sphere of American strategic responsibility, and we are deeply grateful for the aid of the American people."

Prime Minister Peter Fraser, of New Zealand, said that "there are in the Pacific no problems that cannot be solved by goodwill and co-operation."

Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, of Canada, pictured the Canadian government as being "as anxious as the prime minister of Great Britain and colleagues to display to the world the solidarity of the commonwealth and the loyalty to the cause for which we fight, and in seeking solution to its many problems."

SMUTS IS HEARD

Prime Minister Jan Christiaan Smuts, of the Union of South Africa, declared:

"This is a very significant conference held at a great and significant time. In the coming months there will be decided one of the great issues in the history of the world.

"I hope from these deliberations will emerge not only measureless victory and the strengthening of ties that have united us, but the furthering of greater human causes for which we have stood. Our group of nations is the torch-bearer."

Sir Firoz Khan Noon, of India, said "there are no two opinions in India so far as maintenance of ties with Great Britain and prosecution of the present war are concerned.

"There is no one in India—not even Mr. Gandhi himself—who does not want the United Nations to win. And there are no two opinions about maintenance, when the war is won, of India's connection with Great Britain and the other dominions. For all time she will stand as an equal and free member of this community of nations and she is gaining in political and economic stature all the time."

Warmer Today Forecast With Thundershowers

Partly cloudy to cloudy and warmer weather is forecast today, with scattered thundershowers in the afternoon for the Atlanta area.

Yesterday the high reading was 79 degrees, the low was 54.

Battleship Guns Shell Foe's Neighbor Bases Of Ponape, Satawan

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, May 2. (AP)—Powerful Pacific fleet task forces smashed Truk with heavy carrier plane attacks Saturday and Sunday and then bombed and shelled Truk's supporting bases at Ponape and Satawan Island, Admiral Nimitz announced today.

A total of 126 Japanese planes was destroyed in the two-day attack on Truk.

Eight hundred tons of bombs were dropped on Truk's islands. Shore installations were heavily damaged.

While carrier bombers blasted, bombed and tore Ponape, 440 miles east of Truk, battleships commanded by Vice Admiral W. A. Lee pounded Ponape's installations with their heavy guns Monday.

Earlier today Tokyo radio reported an American carrier force had caused "some damage" to Truk's ground installations in attacks Sunday and Monday. Tokyo asserted Japanese interceptors and shore guns "heavily damaged" an aircraft carrier and shot down more than 30 United States planes.

SATAWAN SHELLED

Satawan, 189 miles southeast of Truk, in the Nomoi island group, was shelled Sunday by cruisers under command of Rear Admiral J. B. Oldendorf.

Carrier planes carried out coordinated bombing attacks.

Admiral Nimitz said no American ship was damaged in the operation of the fleet task forces under the overall command of Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher.

American aircraft losses were light.

"Approximately 30 aircraft personnel are missing," Admiral Nimitz reported.

PONAPE DAMAGE HEAVY

Nimitz said considerable damage was inflicted at Ponape and Satawan by our "protracted shelling and bombing."

Sixty Japanese planes were shot down in air combat in the first day of the Truk attack and 60 were destroyed on the ground. Five enemy planes were downed by the antiaircraft of task force ships.

Only one Jap plane was encountered on the second day of the Truk attacks. It promptly was shot down.

The sighting of only one enemy plane Sunday strongly suggested that the enemy's immediately available air strength at Truk was totally neutralized.

ONE PLANE SIGHTED

Mitscher's carrier pilots apparently couldn't find any kind of Japanese ships to hit in their Saturday and Sunday sorties. The communique made no mention of any ships in the lagoon.

Most of the raids concentrated on five islands in the Truk atoll—Dublon, Param, Eten, Moen and Fefan.

Nazi Key Rail Junctions Smashed One an Hour

Heaviest Pounding Of War Rocks Wake

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, PEARL HARBOR, May 2.—(AP)—Heavy Liberator bombers of the Seventh Army Air Force gave Japanese-held Wake island, 2,300 miles west of here, its heaviest pounding of the war last Sunday.

Flying through moderate anti-aircraft fire, the Navy announced today, the bombers dropped 95 tons of explosives on defense installations. Although several enemy planes arose, no interception was attempted and all the raiding planes returned to their base.

20 Barges Smashed Fleeing Wewak

ADVANCED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Wednesday, May 3—(AP)—Allied planes and P-T boats have smashed 20 supply barges fleeing the Japanese isolated base of Wewak and other marooned enemy forces near Aitape, headquarters announced today.

The planes also strafed the inland escape routes in those sectors for some of the 60,000 Japanese estimated to be caught between captured Madang and recently seized Hollandia.

In another action along the New Guinea coast more than 200 miles northwest of Hollandia a new raid on the Schouten islands stirred up Japanese air opposition. Six enemy planes were shot down. The raiders damaged an enemy freighter.

On the southeastern end of the New Guinea ground front Australians who captured Alexishafen, 10 miles north of Madang, last week, now have pushed five miles beyond that air base without encountering any opposition.

Today's communique reported raids on Wewak, on Rabaul, New Britain, and Woleai in the western Carolines.

Auxiliary Police Plan Works Smoothly in Bibb

By JOHN BOOTH,
Macon News Reporter.
Special to THE CONSTITUTION

MACON, May 2.—The proposed plan to relieve the manpower shortage in the Atlanta police department by enlisting Civilian Defense auxiliary policemen is already in smooth operation in Bibb county.

The Bibb-Macon auxiliary police force with a regular working crew of 250 volunteers has won the commendation of both Police Chief Robert L. Miller and Chief Deputy E. Julian Peacock, of the Bibb county sheriff's office.

The supplementary police body, according to Booth, has full authority to prevent crime and assist in law enforcement in both the city and county, working with the regular city police and the sheriff's office.

The force has been in existence since December, 1941, when it was organized under the Office of Civilian Defense. The training period for each volunteer is 60 hours before he is allowed to patrol a beat alone.

In the operational phase of the auxiliary force, there are seven companies in the county assigned to the territory in which they reside. They never go outside these zones except in case of an emergency. Colored groups work in squads under white officers.

Since the majority of the auxiliary policemen patrol only at night and hold regular jobs in the daytime, an assembly point has been set up in each zone to handle calls for daytime duty. At least 50 men can be summoned to any given point within 18 or 20 minutes.

Each company has a headquarters with light, heat and telephone service supplied. Under the present setup, each auxiliary policeman is on duty one night a week, but he may be called out as an alternate if necessary. Each volunteer purchased his own uniform, and under the new financial program, the expenses for operating the radio cars will come from the auxiliary police treasury.

Captain E. B. Burden heads the executive staff of the Bibb-Macon auxiliary police force, which also has an examining board of five officers who accept and examine all new applicants for duty. City Solicitor Oscar Long is in charge of the examining board and also the court of inquiry which tries police officers in the same manner as an Army court-martial.

Monthly operational expenses run very low. The force raised several hundred dollars about 18 months ago and is now planning another drive.

Bakery Strikes Peril Atlanta's Supply of Bread

Employes of bakery firms which produce 70 per cent of the bread consumed in the Atlanta area are now out on strike, according to L. M. Hatcher, president of the Bakers' and Confectionary Workers' Local No. 42, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor.

This situation may imperil the city's bread supply, reports received by M. A. Hornsby, chief of police, indicate. Such a shortage, these reports forecast, may be felt as early as today.

While insisting that these strikes are all "unauthorized," Hatcher nevertheless indicated an opinion that in each case the workers had good reasons for their walkout.

THREE FIRMS AFFECTED

The strike affects the three largest baking firms in the city. Two of them, according to Hatcher, are completely tied up by walkouts and the third operated yesterday with one-third the usual force. Hatcher predicted that in the latter case the tieup would be complete at 4 o'clock this morning.

The companies whose employes are on strike and the causes were listed by Hatcher as follows:

Lee Baking Company, whose 165 employes walked out late Monday in protest against the discharge of W. J. Morgan, a Navy draftee, who had only four days to go on a 21-day leave before going into service. This company's plant is at 211 Moreland avenue, N. E.

Stone Baking Company, at 375 Highland avenue, N. E., whose 175 employes walked out yesterday morning.

New South Bakery, at Glenn and Murphy avenues, S. W., 110 of whose employes went out yesterday in effort to force union recognition. Union officials say that the other employes of this company will join the strike this morning.

NOT "SYMPATHY" STRIKES

All of these strikes, Hatcher said, arise from different causes and none of them are "sympathy" strikes.

To The Constitution, Hatcher sketched the sequence of the three strikes as follows:

(1). The employes of the Lee Baking Company walked out in protest against the discharge of Morgan without giving the union

Steady Allied Air Offensive Rises in Fury

LONDON, Wednesday, May 3.—(AP)—Sky-filling Allied armadas, spearheaded by hundreds of U. S. Liberator bombers hammered German invasion coast defenses and rail feeder lines from dawn to dusk yesterday, hurling explosives at a two-ton-per-minute clip and smashing key junctions at the rate of one an hour in an unexampled display of aerial might which went almost unchallenged by the Germans.

Jittery German radio announcers, predicting that the big Allied land invasion was "imminent," came on the air just before midnight to shout: "Attention! Attention! Enemy intruders entering western Germany." This signified that giant RAF night bombers were carrying the preinvasion onslaught into the 19th straight day.

The RAF, in a 1,000-plane attack Monday night, had showered more than 2,500 tons of explosives on targets in Belgium, France, Germany and Italy before the American daylight fleets took over yesterday in a grinding attrition preliminary to actual cross-channel troop smashes.

Allied sorties daily were running into the 2,000 and 3,000 brackets, and presumably yesterday's attacks would approximate those of the days before, but an official estimate was not available.

Nothing like this sustained campaign, now running through its 18th straight day, has ever been seen before, and it is still rising in violence. These pre-invasion onslaughts, which now include mass dive-bombing at low level with little interference, had a sig-

Japs Lose Cruiser, 2 Destroyers As Allies Bag 17 More Vessels

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP)—Allied submarines hacking at harried Japanese shipping have cut a new gap of 17 ships, four of them war vessels, out of the Nipponese lifeline of conquest.

The total represents 12 American kills, including a light cruiser and two destroyers, and five British, including one destroyer, announced respectively by Navy headquarters in Washington and the Admiralty in London.

The American coups brought to 695 the number of Japanese ships sunk, probably sunk or damaged by United States submarines alone, including 69 warships.

Aside from the combatant vessels, the newly announced lists included:

Sunk by American subs—One large tanker, two medium-size cargo transports, five medium-size cargo vessels, one large naval auxiliary.

By British subs—Four supply ships, one reported as medium-sized, two more as smaller, and the fourth not described.

The U. S. Navy, in line with long-established policy of keeping the enemy guessing, gave no details, but the British were more communicative.

The British-sunk destroyer went down south of the Andaman Islands in the Indian ocean while escorting a supply ship, which also was torpedoed. Another supply vessel, strongly escorted, was sunk in the same area. In Malacca Strait between Malaya and Sumatra the British reported destruction of a medium-sized vessel with a deck cargo of motor transport, and the two smaller ships.

Two supply ships and an escort vessel were damaged in addition to the actual sinkings, the British reported, and one of the submarines in the raids bombarded military installations at Port Blair in the Andaman Islands, hitting a small escort ship and escaping undamaged after a brisk duel with shore batteries.

No reports of anything less than actual sinkings came from the U. S. Navy which months ago stopped reporting ships damaged.

The light cruiser, a type in which the Japanese have been sorely deficient since engagements early in the war, and the large tanker, badly needed to maintain distant outposts, will be specially missed by the enemy among the victims of the American undersea forces. The tankers have been a special target for months.

American attacks by means other than submarines build up an overall figure of 2,224 Japanese ships, including 609 combatant vessels, sunk, probably sunk or damaged.

Augusta Liquor Stores Forced To Show Stock

With the State Revenue Department attempting to force liquor from under the counters for public display and sale, Augusta, hotbed of the liquor problem, has passed an ordinance requiring retail liquor stores to display 75 per cent of their merchandise and remain open at least three hours daily.

In Augusta, the new ordinance, adopted Monday night at the suggestion of Mayor W. D Page, received various interpretations. Some said it represented an attempt to prevent sales of liquor by the drink and others said it is an effort to prevent operators of liquor stores from hiding part of their goods from the public.

The ordinance itself requires that liquor dealers must display all brands of liquor in stock at least three hours a day and must publicly post the hours of opening so that the public may have adequate opportunity to purchase the goods. It also requires such dealers to sell by package not less than 75 per cent of all liquor stocks received instead of storing it for future use or selling it by the drink.

John B. Kennedy' Augusta's commissioner of public safety, gave his approval to the new ordinance and warned liquor dealers that further restrictive measures against them might be necessary.

The Augusta ordinance follows the recent warning by J. Eugene Cook, state revenue commissioner, that retail dealers throughout the state must display their goods. In that warning, issued last Saturday, Cook specifically mentioned hotel shops which, he said, have made a practice of diverting pack-

Nips Attacking Strongly South of Imphal Base

SOUTHEAST ASIA HEADQUARTERS, Kandy, Ceylon, May 2.—(AP)—Japanese invasion forces are attacking strongly in the Palel area, 28 miles south of Imphal in India, it was disclosed today amid indications that the enemy was about to launch his expected mass assault on the big Allied base from that direction.

A communique issued by Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters said a Japanese attack on Palel's defenses Sunday night was "heavily" beaten off, but added that patrol clashes were raging in the hills north of Palel. A road runs from Palel to Imphal, passing east of Lake Loktak.

A Tokyo dispatch broadcast by Berlin radio declared Tuesday that 12,000 Allied troops had begun a "wholesale, confused retreat" from Palel and said the main fighting now centered around a point about nine miles north of Palel, or some 19 miles from Imphal. The same broadcast claimed that 72 Allied planes, mostly transports, had been destroyed over the Imphal plain in the past two weeks.

Allied leaders in this theater, including the commander-in-chief, Mountbatten, have given repeated assurance that Imphal is in no danger of falling to the Japanese.

From the Burma interior, 150 miles east of the Indian war theater, came an announcement that Allied air-borne troops had killed at least 1,000 Japanese in repulsing a three-day attack on an Allied road block 65 miles southwest of Mogaung.

An Allied communique indicated that Lieutenant General Joseph W. Silwell's Chinese-American forces, now supported by American-operated medium tanks, continued to make steady progress in Northern Burma, capturing an enemy strongpoint south of Warazup and seizing large quantities of munitions. Stilwell's advance units are within 30 miles of Mogaung.

In discussing the fighting about Kohima, Allied base 60 miles north of Imphal in India, an Allied spokesman dispelled some confusion by explaining that the Japanese had held both Kohima village and Kohima Bazaar for some time, but that they had not penetrated the box-like defenses of the main town. The native village and the Bazaar are about a mile from Kohima town. Today's communique said there was no change in the Kohima situation.

'Getting There,' Stilwell Says

WITH STILWELL'S FORCES IN THE MOGAUNG VALLEY, May 2.—(AP)—Lieutenant General Joseph Stilwell's forces in northern Burma still haven't reached the top of the league "but we're getting there," he said today, two years after he admitted to "one hell of a beating" in the Burma retreat.

The veteran fighter was asked to comment on his current campaign as commander of American and Chinese invasion forces in northern Burma, in view of his troops being "sort of at the bottom of the league" two years ago.

"Bottom of the league, hell!" snapped Uncle Joe. "We were clean outclassed. And we're still not in the first division, but we're getting there."

STATEMENT IN LONGHAND

In a statement written in longhand and handed correspondents at a specially arranged press conference, Stilwell said that "we can promise you all we'll be in here swinging till we get to where we're going."

At the moment when "Vinegar Joe" made that promise, his Chinese troops in the Mogaung valley were poised on the brink of a substantial southward sweep toward Kaimang—a sweep delayed only by stubborn Jap resistance around Inkangatawng. There was a strong indication that as soon as that resistance was broken—and the break may come at any moment—Japanese defenses are likely to crumble like an eggshell. The 22d and 38th Divisions then may cover miles instead of yards in the race to clear the enemy from the Mogaung valley before the monsoon rains.

HAS STATEMENT READY

At the start of the conference Stilwell drew out a sheet of paper.

"They told me I ought to have a statement ready," he said. "If I just hand it to you that'll save time for everybody."

"Shall someone read aloud now—or later?" Stilwell was asked.

"Later, for gosh sakes," the general exclaimed.

Here is a sketchy picture of what has been accomplished in six months toward erasing the memory and landmarks of that "hell of a beating" of two years ago.

By conservative estimates Chinese and Allied troops under Stilwell's command have killed more than 7,000 Japanese.

Seventy-five hundred square miles have been retaken in the drive from North Burma to reopen the China land route.

The entire Hukawng valley as well as Dalu valley to the west has been cleared of the enemy, while one-third of the Mogaung and a sizable portion of a fourth valley to the east now are in Allied hands.

Jap Column Reaches Strategic Hsuchang

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP)—One of three Japanese columns driving down the Peiping-Hankow railway on strategic Hsuchang has reached the gates of the Honan province city, and bitter fighting has been raging in the area since Sunday morning, the Chungking radio said today.

A second column received reinforcements and succeeded in breaking a Chinese encirclement ring 60 miles to the southeast of Hsuchang, said the broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, and the third, also reinforced, captured a village closer to their goal late yesterday.

In northern Honan, the broadcast said, Chinese troops killed or wounded 700 Japanese Saturday in the fighting for Mihsien, and lost 300 of their own troops.

Sgt. Wayne L. White Loses Life in England

Sergeant Wayne L. White, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. White, of 141 Emerson avenue, Decatur, was killed in an airplane crash at Warminister, England, according to information received by his parents from the War Department in Washington, D. C.

Sergeant White entered the Army in August, 1941, and received his basic training at Candler Field, Lawson Field and New Orleans Army Air Base. He has been overseas 21 months.

Besides his parents, he is survived by two grandparents, Mrs. L. A. Rector and Mrs. J. N. White, of Marshall, N. C.

Mrs. Murrah, Columbus, Dies

COLUMBUS, Ga., May 2.—Funeral services for Mrs. John M. Murrah, widow of a former mayor of Columbus who also served as a member of the legislature, who died suddenly Saturday, were held this afternoon at St. Luke Methodist church.

Mrs. Murrah, a leader in women's club, civic and church work, and widely known as a philanthropist, was born in Chipley in 1876, and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Goodman. She has lived in Columbus 44 years.

Mrs. Murrah was immediate past president of the U. D. C., of the American Legion Auxiliary, a past president of the City Federation of Women's Clubs, a regent of the D. A. R. and president of the Orpheus Club. She was a member of the W. C. T. U., the Wynnton Study Club, the advisory board of the Salvation Army; chairman of the home nursing committee of the Red Cross, and long a member of the Red Cross board of directors. She was also chairman of the cancer control drive for Muscogee county and on the council of USO clubs.

Survivors include two sisters, Mrs. Ada DeLoach and Mrs. C. R. Brawner, of Chipley; two nieces, Mrs. J. E. Passmore, of Columbus, and Mrs. T. W. Smith, of Decatur; three nephews, Ralph DeLoach, of Chipley; Nolan Murrah, of Columbus, and Captain Edward Murrah, former mayor of Columbus, now of the U. S. Army.

"IT'S THIS WAY, DAD"—Says Lieutenant Drury W. Wood Jr. to Staff Sergeant Drury W. Wood Sr. The two Marines, father and son, met here after the son's graduation and designation as a Marine pilot.

Father and Son, Both Marines, Meet in Atlanta

"Like father, like son" proved more than a story-book bromide when two Atlanta Marines were reunited in the headquarters of the corps here yesterday.

Lieutenant Drury Waller Wood Jr., Marine fighter pilot, following the war record of his father, Staff Sergeant Drury Waller Wood Sr., veteran of World War I, and at present assigned to Marine southern procurement division, was graduated and commissioned last week. He is a son of Staff Sergeant and Mrs. Wood, 336 Fifth street, N. E.

Lieutenant Wood was graduated from Boys' High school here in February, 1941. He was a lieutenant in the R. O. T. C., and was manager of the rifle team.

He studied mechanical engineering at Georgia Tech for two years, was on the first rifle team, and played the bell lyre in the band. He left school in January, 1943, to enter Marine training.

Sergeant Wood, a veteran of World War I, was born in Atlanta. He enlisted in the U. S. Army in March, 1918, in Valdosta, and received his infantry training at Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, S. C. He went overseas in May, was in England and France, and saw combat in the Alsace-Lorraine defensive sector and the Meuse-Argonne.

He came back to Atlanta in April, 1919, and went into the furniture business. He is at present on military leave from Sears-Roebuck and company of this city.

Knowing that his son was going into the Marine Air Corps, Sergeant Wood decided that he wanted to get back into the service, and enlisted in the Marine Corps in November, 1942. He went to boot camp at Parris Island, S. C., and was assigned to Atlanta headquarters, southern procurement divison, in January, 1943.

Irwin C. Bryant Succumbs at 55

Irwin C. Bryant, 55, inspector for the Fulton county sanitary department, died Monday night at the residence in Ben Hill.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow at Ben Hill Methodist church, the Rev. A. C. Peacock, the Rev. W. T. Hunnicutt and the Rev. Y. A. Oliver officiating. Burial will be in the churchyard, under the direction of Howard L. Carmichael.

Surviving are his wife; a son, Private James T. Bryant, of Camp Sibert, Ala.; two sisters, Mrs. G. H. Kimberly and Mrs. J. C. Greenwood, of Atlanta, and two brothers, Earl Bryant, of Ojus, Fla., and A. C. Bryant, Atlanta city policeman.

An employe of the county 20 years, Bryant was justice of the peace for the Ben Hill district. He was senior steward in the Ben Hill Methodist church, secretary of the Ben Hill Masonic Lodge, and an active member of the Ben Hill Civic club.

A. J. Kaiser's Father Dies

Anthony Kaiser, 85, of Waseca, Minn., father of A. J. Kaiser, secretary of The Constitution Publishing Company, died yesterday at his home after an illness of several months.

Funeral services will be held at St. Mary's church in Waseca tomorrow. Burial will be in the churchyard. A native of Waseca, Mr. Kaiser was a leading farmer in his state, and was well known in agricultural circles. He was a member of the St. Mary's Catholic church.

Besides his son, Mr. Kaiser is survived by seven daughters, Mrs. Nellie Brown, Mrs. Henry Mulcahay, Mrs. Denis Glynn, Mrs. Eldo Kunz, Mrs. Mattie Fox, all of Waseca, Minn., and Mrs. George Williams, of Mankato, Minn.; Mrs. Howard Mahoney, of Chicago, and 15 grandchildren.

AP 'Aces'

The AP force for covering the invasion under Bunnelle includes scores of veteran, highly trained editors, writers and cameramen recruited from all over the world. Many have been on duty throughout the war on various fronts.

Bunnelle himself is one of the few correspondents to see the whole war in England. He's been through the entire war so far—"blitz" and all—without leave. He has been "sweating it out" in endless conferences with military authorities, and, as chief of the London bureau and head of the American Correspondents' Association, is virtually spokesman for the entire American press covering the invasion.

FOUR WILL 'INVADE'

Wes Gallagher, veteran campaigner, heads the invasion staff. He headed the African invasion staff and was first to file a story after the Americans landed in North Africa. Gallagher is an old-time campaigner from the Balkans on down. He will spend most of his time at supreme Allied headquarters, and as such will be the link between military forces in the field and the clearing point in London.

Present plans call for four men to go to Europe with the first wave of correspondents. They are:

Don Whitehead, a veteran of the Italian and African campaigns and widely known for his battle descriptives.

Roger Greene, a former war editor on the New York foreign news desk, whose byline is known to millions, who started his AP career here in London before the war.

William S. White, also a former war editor in New York, a cool, fast and colorful writer who combines long service as a war interpreter with actual army experience.

AERIAL COVERAGE

James F. King, a rugged little fellow—who gets along with soldiers as though he had been born in a uniform. He will be with the armies.

To cover the all-important aerial attacks that are expected to precede and support the land invasion the AP will have Gladwin Hill, W. W. Hercher and Henry Jameson, all experts on the principles and application of air war. Hill, who will head this staff, has flown on operational missions.

Hal Boyle, an effervescent Irish-American who went in with the first assault waves in Africa, Sicily and Italy, will be in the midst of it all, turning out his daily column.

These frontline reporters will be supported, backed up and relieved, as need be, by these staff members and others: A. I. Goldberg, Austin Bealmear, Henry Bagley, Alex Singleton, Franklin Banker, Howard Cowan, Ruth Cowan, James Long, Judson O'Quinn, Russell Landstrom, Blake Sullivan, Pugh Moore, Richard Kasischke and Barbara Wace, the latter the only Britisher on an otherwise all-American staff.

Peanut Parley Hears Weltner

By PAUL WARWICK.

Stick with the federal government in all its demands and regulations until victory has been won, "but the minute this conflict is over—let's get back to free enterprise," Philip Weltner, president of Oglethorpe University, urged in a speech last night before the Atlanta convention of the National Peanut Council.

"Local self-government is the cornerstone of your liberties," the lawyer-educator also told the gathering, adding in this connection that "the greatest mistake our government ever made was when it began matching state funds with federal funds for various state enterprises."

Dr. Weltner's address was the feature of last night's banquet of the peanut men at the Biltmore hotel.

RICHARDS PICKED

At the same session it was announced that the new president of the peanut council, assuming office after this conclave, would be Walter A. Richards, of Columbus, president of the Tom Huston Peanut Company.

Dr. Weltner, while commending the "live-at-home" gospel as it is now preached in Georgia and throughout the south, said that this policy "is after all a stop-gap economy, an open avowal that the cash value of our southern crops are inadequate to provide southern farm labor with a full and free existence." The remedy, he concluded, was a creation of higher values from the labor of southern agricultural workers, values that would bring an adequate cash return.

PEANUT CONSUMPTION

During the day it had developed that 11 pounds of peanuts, in some form or another, were consumed by the average American during the last year.

The members of the council, in their Atlanta convention, were considering ways and means of sustaining the war-born boom in peanuts during the postwar period and increasing its spread in the years to come.

William P. Woodley, president of the council, predicted that production of the popular little nut would probably reach 1,500,000 tons (3,000,000,000 pounds, mind you) in 1944, as against 401,000 tons in 1938, almost quadrupled production in six years.

New uses for peanuts, as well as a broad program to preach the gospel of peanuts as a nourishing food, will be sought and broadcast in an extensive educational program which has been approved by the peanut industry.

CLINIC HEAD APPLAUDED

Great enthusiasm yesterday greeted the speech of Dr. Thomas Spies, head of the famous Hillman nutrition clinic in Birmingham and professor of internal medicine in the college of medicine of the University of Cincinnati. Dr. Spies told how phenomenal success had been attained in rehabilitating extreme cases of malnutrition by the use of a mixture of yeast and peanut butter.

Earl R. French, national marketing director of the A. and P. food stores, urged the organization yesterday to develop an intelligent plan among growers and processors, to accomplish a vastly improved educational and merchandising job to fit the demands of the postwar period.

At today's concluding session, Joseph E. Boyle and Helen E. Ridley, of the J. Walter Thompson Advertising Company, will present plans for an advertising program; Dr. H. P. Stuckey will discuss peanut studies at the Georgia Agricultural Experiment Station, and Dr. K. S. Markley, of New Orleans, will tell of research being carried on at the Southern Regional Research Laboratory.

age-store liquor into outside sales-by-the-drink. He threatened to send state revenue agents to clean up the condition of which he complained.

Yesterday a number of attorneys for hotels over Georgia came to the State Revenue Department to confer with Cook and learn the full significance of the new order.

Cook said the order simply means retailers must display their wares, and that state agents may have to move in and break up illegal sales-by-the-drink if local enforcement officers do not do so.

Liquor dealers complained that the display order would hurt them, because "bootleggers start a run on our stores when we put liquor on the counters."

The revenue commissioner said the dealers could control these "runs" by refusing to sell to undesirable persons, or by limiting their sales to customers.

"We will force these stores to display their goods," Cook said, "but we do not say they have to sell to any particular person."

Ensign N. H. Savant Killed in Plane Crash

Ensign Nicholas Hammond Savant, 20, son of D. P. Savant, dean of the Georgia Tech School of Engineering, of 737 Techwood drive, N. W., was killed yesterday in an airplane crash near Memphis, Tenn., the Navy Department informed his parents.

He was an instructor in the Navy Air Corps stationed at Memphis. Ensign Savant attended Georgia Tech and was graduated from the Spartan School of Aeronautics in Tulsa, Okla. He received his commission in 1943.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

Citizen Police Slender Hope

Hope of filling the war depleted ranks of the city police department with citizens of Atlanta is fading fast and city officials have begun a study of alternatives looking optimistically to the time when 100 members of the Civilian Defense Police Auxiliary can be assigned for work.

Stafford W. Graydon, director of the city personnel department, announced yesterday that only 10 out of 61 applicants had passed mental and physical examinations for appointment to vacant positions in the department. The ten must, however, pass successfully an oral interview in which their poise, alertness and general appearance will be measured, and then must pass muster in a character investigation to be conducted under the direction of Chief Hornsby.

City council has given the green light to a proposal by George Ellington, chief of the Civilian Police Auxiliary, that he pick 100 members of the Auxiliary to give eight hours a week to supplementing the personnel of the regular city police force.

WILL ORDER UNIFORMS

The Auxiliary holds a solution to replacing the 26-man shortage in patrolmen, police committe members believe. An appropriation for the uniforms is on Mayor Hartsfield's desk and probably will be signed today. The prospect is that orders for the uniforms will be placed immediately.

One other means of offsetting the shortage in the ranks of the city department has been suggested. It would waive a long-standing requirement that all applicants for appointment be residents of Atlanta two years prior to qualifying for assignment. This would allow the personnel department to recruit prospects from near-by cities, with the probability that some experienced officers would seek jobs in Atlanta.

POLICE GROUP'S PREFERENCE

Police committee members, however, have not yet approved such a move, pinning their hopes on the success of the auxiliary police.

While the police problem was being debated, Graydon was optimistic about recruiting sufficient clerical workers, stenographers and typists to meet the demand.

Commercial and Girls' High school students apparently held the answer to the shortage in those positions with 30 Commercial High school students taking mental examinations yesterday.

About 50 applicants for similar jobs at Girls' High school will take the mental examinations Tuesday.

FSA Officials Set Food Goals

Increased production goals on 1944 food and oil crops for some 3,500 Georgia farmers who have purchased farms under the Farm Security Administration's tenant purchase program have been announced here by L. M. Hollingsworth, FSA program analyst, of Montgomery, Ala., before a conference of FSA officials from four southeastern states.

Hollingsworth said heavy rains this spring have not materially affected the food crop production of Georgia and the three other states, and they are expected to meet the goals, even though some call for increases as much as one-fourth more than last year's production.

Pointing out that Georgia farm-purchasers are 147 per cent ahead of schedule in repayment of loans obtained through the FSA program, Hollingsworth attributed part of this record to the fact that peanut crops have been money-makers for these farmers.

E. S. Morgan, regional FSA director of Montgomery, said future policies of the FSA in correction of problems that have arisen in the past will be discussed during the next three days of the conference.

He emphasized that regional and state FSA officials will in the future work more closely with the local committees of farmers, who approve all applications for rehabilitation aid and farm ownership loans.

R. L. Van Sant, assistant regional director, of Montgomery, is presiding at the conference.

Anzio Front Flares Again

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NAPLES, May 2.—(AP)—Fighting on the Anzio beachhead south of Rome has increased in the past 24 hours, the Germans making small gains in an attack on Allied positions three miles southwest of Carroceto and Allied forces raiding enemy-held Cerreto Alto on the extreme right flank of the perimeter.

On the Adriatic sector of the main front numerous German night patrols were driven off in brisk clashes but these actions were minor affairs. There have been no changes in the battle lines on the ground, an Allied headquarters communique announced today.

The main weight of the steady offensive of the Mediterranean air force swung against Nazi communications in northern Italy.

Last night RAF heavy bombers made a particularly effective attack on the rail yards at Alessandria, which is the junction of routes linking Turin, Milan and Genoa over which a great volume of enemy supplies is moving. Two-ton bombs crashed into the yards, causing a gigantic explosion, presumably from an ammunition or oil train. The heavies also bombed Livorno.

German installations at Genoa were hit by medium bombers for the fourth successive night while other formations blasted the port of La Spezia and left fires burning in the rail yards and a locomotive factory at Florence.

Allied aircraft flew more than 1,300 sorties during the day and night, destroying two enemy planes. Two Allied planes were lost.

625,000 Men Under 26 Get Farm Deferment

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP)—About 625,000 men under 26 held agricultural draft deferments on April 1, the latest date when figures were available, selective service said today in its monthly bulletin to draft boards.

"This is the largest deferred group of registrants in the age bracket from which the Army and Navy most urgently need recruits for combat service," the publication said, estimating that about 350,000 of the 625,000 could pass physical examinations for general military service.

None of the 350,000 "should be continued in deferment unless he meets fully the requirements of the Tydings amendment," said the article. This amendment provides for deferment of farm workers if they are regularly engaged, irreplaceable men in an essential farm activity.

Spanish Wolfram Cut Lifts Embargo on Oil

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP)—The Allies have lifted the embargo on oil shipments to Spain in exchange for a nine-tenths cut in that country's sales of wolfram to Germany.

With announcement of the compromise agreement, American and British diplomats turned renewed attention to paring down Portugal's sales to the Axis of the vital ore, which is used in hardening steel.

Anglo-American negotiations with Portugal, which ships considerable more wolfram than Spain, began some time ago. It was believed that settlement of the Spanish questions would speed the Lisbon talks.

The United States and Britain have agreed with Spain that the Nazis may obtain not more than 20 tons of Spanish wolfram for each of the next two months, and not more than 40 tons monthly the rest of this year "if as a practical matter shipments can be made." This is about one-tenth of what the Nazis expected to get, officials said.

Clearly, State Department and British foreign office officials who announced the settlement today expect that opening of the second front will cut off German traffic.

Lifting of the Allied oil embargo permits shipments to be resumed under the former quota arrangement, with strict supervision to see that none of the petroleum goes to the Nazis.

Spain's wolfram production jumped tremendously during 1943, and in January of this year before the Allies cracked down with the oil embargo, the Nazis obtained 300 tons with the expectation of even greater increases.

An agreement was reached early in the war that to preserve her neutrality, Portugal would divide her wolfram exports equally among Germany, Britain and the United States.

Because of her co-operation with the Allies along other lines, such as granting bases in the Azores, Portugal has not been the object of such pressure as was imposed on Spain.

Mrs. Gillespie's Funeral Today

Services for Mrs. C. A. Gillespie, wife of the director of the state alcohol control unit, who died Saturday at the residence, 1306 North Avenue, N. E., will be at 11:30 a. m. today at Spring Hill. In addition to her husband, Mrs. Gillespie is survived by two daughters, Mrs. W. M. Hollingsworth, of Atlanta, and Mrs. W. P. Conine, of Lynchburg, Va., and a son, Captain Charles R. Gillespie, with the Army Medical Corps, in the Panama Canal zone.

The former Miss Pallie Moore, of Heard county, Mrs. Gillespie moved to Atlanta in 1929.

Texas Faces Serious Flood

By The Associated Press

Texas faced a threat of extensive flood damage by its major rivers yesterday while 11,600 federal troops, state guardsmen and prisoners of war worked to hold remaining levees in Missouri and Illinois against the swollen waters of the Mississippi and its tributaries.

Five persons, including two Army trainees, were killed in Texas windstorms that swept heavy rainfall into the state. Numerous small streams surged immediately out of their banks and government forecasters warned of danger in the rise of the Trinity, Brazos, Neches and Sabine rivers. The Brazos at Waco was almost at flood stage.

The Mississippi, past its highest crest at St. Louis since 1844, was expected to fall as far south as Cape Girardeau, Mo., but Army engineers said the situation would be critical at half a dozen saturated levees until the river had dropped "a few feet."

The Missouri river was falling along its lower reaches, but the Illinois river remained stationary below Beardstown, Ill., continuing its threat to levees that have stood fast against the flood waters. The Coast Guard evacuated residents of one endangered levee district.

FDR Messages Poles, 'Inspiration to All'

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, in a message to the Polish people tonight, said that the continued resistance of the Poles to their Nazi oppressors is "an inspiration to all."

The text:

"On the occasion of the national anniversary of Poland, I take great pleasure in sending to the Polish people through you my greetings and best wishes in which I am joined by the people of the United States.

"It is fitting to recall in this fateful fifth year of the war that it was Poland who first defied the Nazi hordes. The continued resistance of the Polish people against their Nazi oppressors is an inspiration to all.

"The relentless struggle being carried on by the United Nations will hasten victory and the liberation of all freedom-loving peoples."

grievance committee an opportunity to consider the case.

(2). Early yesterday the executives of the Stone Baking Company sent to the plant of the Lee Baking Company and obtained a large number of wrappers for bread put out by the latter company. The plan, Hatcher said, was for Stone to wrap its own bread in Lee company wrappers in an effort to meet the normal demand for the bread of the Lee Baking Company. Stone employes, said Hatcher, refused to permit this and went out on strike in order to prevent it. But Hatcher insisted that Stone employes were at all times willing to continue to put out Stone's bread under the usual Stone wrapper.

SEEK UNION RECOGNITION

(3). Two-thirds of the employes of the New South Bakery—110 in all—went on strike during the day in an effort to obtain recognition of their newly formed union. Until very recently, Hatcher said, employes of this company were unorganized. Hatcher said that the remaining one-third of the employes of this company would go on strike by 4 a. m. today.

In further explaining the status of the Lee Company strike, Hatcher said that last January the company had trouble with its employes over the discharge of a worker in the bakery department without consulting the union. This dispute is now before the War Labor Board, but there is as yet no decision, according to Hatcher.

"The company contends," continued Hatcher, "that it has the absolute right of discharge. The union denies that. When the company fired Morgan without consulting the union grievance committee, the employes walked out on a strike."

Hatcher reiterated that the union contract with the Lee Baking Company has expired and so far the company has not renewed it. He denied, however, that the present strike has anything to do with the question of the contract.

Efforts to reach representatives of the three companies whose employes are on strike for a statement of their position and point of view continued without avail at a late hour.

So far, the police have reported no disorders as a result of the strikes.

Hope School Girls To Give Ballet at Lawson

When the Ballet Russe presented "Swan Lake" in Atlanta last January, two young heads in the audience were busy making mental note of the choreography and two pairs of dancing feet were keeping step with the dancers on the stage.

For three months the music and dance patterns of "Swan Lake" kept running through their minds, and during odd moments at school Margie Morris and Nancy Robinson could be found pirouetting and teaching ballet steps to other R. L. Hope sixth graders.

Their teacher, Miss Rosa Lee Shannon, watched the dancing with interest, but she was skeptical when Margie and Nancy asked if they and their classmates might work out their interpretation of "Swan Lake" and present it at an assembly program.

REHEARSAL BEGUN

But the two youngsters wouldn't be discouraged, and three weeks ago the ballet went into regular rehearsal, in preparation for two appearances in the school auditorium tomorrow.

After all the steps had been worked out, the two young ballerinas began to worry about music for their production. So they took their problem to Miss Nancy Keeler, their dancing teacher.

"You're going at it backwards," Miss Keeler told them. "The steps should be fitted to the music, but we'll see what we can do."

MUSIC WORKED OUT

And with the usual procedure reversed, Miss Keeler and her accompanist worked out a musical pattern to fit Margie's and Nancy's choreography.

Their classmates who will appear in the ballet tomorrow are Barbara Green, Beth Thompson, Mary Virginia Pervis, Marion Anderson, Peggy Barton, Mary Ann Edmondson, Georgia Lee Webster, Margaret Ware and Owen Kellum Jr. Billy Minor will read the story of "Swan Lake."

Miss Keeler and Miss Shannon will offer the ballet at Lawson General hospital this week.

AFL Demands Service Policy

PHILADELPHIA, May 2.—(AP)—The AFL executive council blamed military authorities today for causing "injury to public morale" by their statements on compulsory labor and Selective Service. It made four suggestions for the effective use of manpower.

"That the persistent proposals for national legislation which is opposed by labor, management, agriculture, a majority in congress and the overwhelming mass of the American people, be dropped.

"That the military authorities and the Selective Service system adopt a sound and consistent policy with regard to future recruitment for the armed forces and stick by it.

"That special care be taken not to siphon off irreplaceable men from war industry into the armed forces lest production be crippled.

"That official public announcements as to changing requirements of the various phases of the manpower program henceforth be made by a single responsible authority and only after such changes have actually been decided upon."

Since May Day dawn American and Allied airmen have blasted more than 35 rail junctions and other key targets supplying the German Atlantic wall barricades just across the channel, and roared inland past the old Maginot fortifications along the German border.

During the night the RAF in Britain arose in eight sections, attacking as many targets which were:

An enemy vehicle plant at Lyon, France; an airplane repair plant at Tours; an airplane factory and explosive works at Toulouse; signal equipment depot at Chambly near Paris; the Belgian rail centers of St. Ghislain and Mechelen (Malines); and installations at the German chemical center of Ludwigshafen in the upper Rhineland.

Then by daylight 500 American Liberators and fighters from Britain flew across a foggy channel and unloaded a powerful freight of explosives on the Pas-de-Calais area nearest Britain's shores, and all returned safely.

Thunderbolt fighter-bombers and fighters—the terrible twins of the tactical air force—hit the French rail junctions of Le Mans, 120 miles southwest of Paris, and Tergnier, between St. Quentin and Soissons in northern France. They and their supporting Mustangs, which bombed an airdrome near the Belgian-Dutch border, also struck at the rail center of Aulnoye near the Belgian-French frontier.

All afternoon big American formations still were crossing the channel, Marauder bombers among them. The air was filled with the throb of their motors and occasional shafts of sunlight glistened on their bomb-filled stomachs.

43,000 Bomb-Tons Fall In Nazis' April Showers

LONDON, May 2.—(AP)—The U. S. strategic air force based in Britain and Italy hurled more than 43,500 tons of bombs on Germany and German-occupied Europe during April, American headquarters announced tonight. This was a new daylight record. American losses were 537 bombers, less than three per cent of those used, and 191 fighters, just over one per cent of loss.

Operations were carried on through 23 days and more than 36,000 individual offensive flights were flown, about 20,000 of them by heavy bombers.

A total of 1,282 German planes were destroyed in combat in addition to heavy damage to the German aircraft industry.

The percentage of American losses was about the same as for March when 30,172 tons of bombs were dropped on 26 days of operations.

The RAF meantime announced that its bomber command dropped a record 37,960 tons of bombs on Germany and enemy targets during April, 6,720 more tons than the previous high in March.

200 Funeral Directors Will Meet Here Today

Liquor Firm Is Indicted

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP)—Schenley Distillers Corporation, one of the "Big Four" of the nation's liquor industry, has been charged with conspiracy to sell liquor above ceiling prices and to keep false records, the Justice Department announced today.

A sealed indictment against the Schenley Corporation, one other corporation, and ten individuals, was returned by a federal grand jury in Newark, N. J., April 26 and opened today, Acting Attorney General Charles Fahy said.

The indictment charges the defendants with conspiring to violate the internal revenue code by making false entries in records concerning the receipt and disposition of liquor. In addition, the defendants are charged with conspiracy to violate the price control act by selling liquor at prices exceeding authorized maximums.

SCHENLEY'S STATEMENT

In New York the Schenley Distillers Corporation issued the following statement:

"The indictment does not charge that Schenley sold any merchandise above ceiling prices, nor does it charge that Schenley kept any false records, nor that Schenley shipped any merchandise to other than its regular distributors.

"The indictment attempts to hold Schenley responsible for allegedly unlawful acts of others. Schenley has committed no crime and will meet the charges at the proper time and place."

Tom C. Clark, assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division, said the indictment was the first to be returned against a major liquor firm in connection with the division's campaign against liquor price and distribution irregularities, although some members of large firms have been accused.

AGREEMENT ALLEGED

The indictment alleges an agreement between the Schenley Corporation and Benjamin F. Pross, Great Neck, Long Island, executive business manager of the Wine, Liquor and Distillery Workers Union No. 1 (AFL), New York, to dispose of 15,000 cases of liquor above the regular monthly allotments assigned by Schenley to its regular distributors.

The indictment further alleged that the liquor then passed into irregular channels in Georgia, Texas and Louisiana.

Carl Plunkett Club Chairman

L. Carl Plunkett, well known in Atlanta business and political circles, has been appointed Fulton county chairman of the Young Democratic Clubs of Georgia, according to State President Robert N. Fellows.

"Plunkett will handle the Young Democrat soldier-vote campaign in Fulton county," said Fellows. "He is well qualified to do the job."

Plunkett, secretary-treasurer of Rand & Company, has been identified with Democratic party work for a number of years, and has been particularly active with the Young Democrats. He was a leader in the Fulton county Arnall-for-Governor organization.

Dr. R. W. Speir Dies in Macon

Dr. Robert Waldo Speir, 65, former Atlanta pharmacist, died Monday night at the home of his sister, Mrs. Eula Humphries, in Macon.

Funeral arrangements will be announced.

For many years Dr. Speir was associated with the Marshall Drug Company in Atlanta. Prior to that time, he was a co-owner of the Citizens' Pharmacy in Athens. His late wife was the former Miss Bessie Shearer, of Atlanta.

In addition to his sister, Dr. Speir is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Kirk Peacock, of Miami, Fla.; a brother, Wiley Speir, of Savannah, and a granddaughter, Miss Anne Peacock, of Miami.

Triple Attack Expected Soon by Nazi Experts

By LEWIS HAWKINS.

LONDON, May 2.—(AP)—German military commentators forecast tonight that the Allies would spring a three-pronged invasion of Hitler's inner fortress—with General Dwight D. Eisenhower striking from the west simultaneously with the "imminent" renewal of the Russian offensive and opening of a coast-to-coast drive in Italy.

"Allied troop movements and shifting of materials on the southern (Italian) front indicate the two (Fifth and Eighth) armies intend to launch a fresh attack," said DNB's Karl Pragner in a broadcast recorded by the British ministry of information.

Nazi invasion-guessing comment filled the European air.

"It is very probable," theorized Lieutenant Colonel Von Olberg in a Berlin broadcast, "that the short-lived Soviet offensive on the lower Dnestr and in the Iasi area has been halted by the express order of Stalin, who wants the great battle in the east, which certainly is imminent, to coincide with the opening of the second front in the west. The German command is firmly convinced that the major Soviet offensive will begin soon."

"WON'T BE LONG NOW"

Another commentator said that "strong attacks in the south can also be reckoned with."

Captain Ludwig Sertorius, a commentator for the Germans' Transocean Agency, chimed in with "it won't be long now."

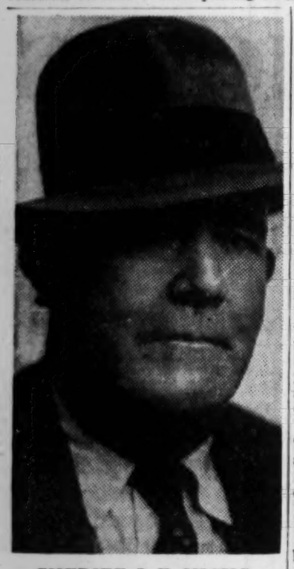

"Since Casablanca," he said, "it has been the plan of the Anglo-American general staffs to tackle the war in Europe first. On account of Allied setbacks in the Pacific theater it can be assumed this Europe-first plan will now be pursued with even greater determination. For this reason the invasion of western Europe will not be long now."

ALLIES' ADVANTAGES

Lieutenant General Kurt Dittmar, another Nazi radio commentator, said tonight that the Allies had certain advantages, "wide traffic lanes of the sea offering many chances to spring surprises, the firepower of a superior fleet and superior air forces."

However, he insisted that any of Eisenhower's plans for encircling operations were fraught with difficulties and hazards and added that "it is obvious that the opponent aiming at invasion is well aware of all these difficulties."

Dittmar said the Allies "doubtless will attempt to achieve encirclement by air, although three-dimensional operations depend on many uncontrollable factors," and asserted that "there is no substitute for encircling operations on land."

SHERIFF J. F. HICKS
Cobb Official Dies

Cobb's Sheriff, J. F. Hicks, Dies

J. F. Hicks, 56, sheriff of Cobb county for the past four years, died yesterday afternoon at Crawford W. Long Memorial hospital after an illness of several months. He developed pneumonia last Saturday following an operation.

Sheriff Hicks was a candidate for re-election in the July 4 primary. In a county election held February 16 two recounts were held to determine the votes received by Hicks and his opponent, T. M. Sanders. The vote was finally placed before a state committee, which ordered the election runover July 4.

Unless action is taken to reopen the candidacy, Sanders will have no opponent. Chief Deputy Dewey Gable will serve as acting sheriff until January 1, 1945.

Prior to becoming sheriff, Hicks, a native of Marietta, had served as a county deputy for eight years, from 1933 to 1941. Before that time he had been a partner in the Benson-Ward-Hicks Grocery Company and was employed by a railroad company in Marietta.

Sheriff Hicks is survived by his wife; four sons, Lieutenant Claude M. Hicks, serving with the Army overseas; Lieutenant Robert Hicks, of Fort Benning; Dorsey and J. F. Hicks Jr., of Marietta; two daughters, Mrs. Ted Moffett and Miss Helen Hicks, of Marietta; four brothers, Joe, Charlie, Will and Steve Hicks, of Marietta, and three sisters, Mrs. Georgia Bradley, of Montgomery, Ala.; Mrs. W. T. Beasley and Mrs. Ruby Knox, of Marietta.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the chapel of Mayes Ward, the Rev. Warren G. Cutts and the Rev. I. A. White officiating. Burial will be in the City cemetery.

Georgia Flyer Killed In Crash at Nashville

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 2.—Five Army fliers were killed late this afternoon when a four-engined B-24 bomber plunged to earth eight miles northeast of the Smyrna Army Air Field, the field's commanding officer said.

The dead were listed as: Lieutenant John W. Strickland, 25, Jefferson, Ga.; Lieutenant Aaron R. LaReau, 27, Kankakee, Ill.; Lieutenant Francis R. Stoikowitz (age unlisted), Paris, Ill.; Lieutenant Joseph W. Johnson (age unlisted), San Antonio, Tex., and Private First Class Ivan P. Jones, 20, Lindley, N. Y.

There were no survivors. The plane, on a combat training flight, struck the ground and burst into flames. All bodies were recovered.

Britons in U. S. Told To Stay If Possible

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP)—Britons in this country, including diplomats and other officials, were forbidden today to return to England on short term missions "unless their journey is a matter of immediate urgency in the national interest."

The British Information Services, in announcing the new travel restrictions, said the ruling further strengthens the April 24 security measure controlling travel from Britain.

It applies to all British subjects abroad and is in effect "until further notice."

Senate Votes SchoolLunches

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP)—An omnibus agricultural-aid bill carrying authority for continuance of the Farm Security Administration and federal aid to school lunch programs passed the senate late today by an overwhelming voice vote.

Before the vote, Senator Bushfield, Republican, South Dakota, protested that the measure had been reported by the Agriculture Committee without hearings but, with the odds obviously against him, he withdrew a motion to send the bill back to committee.

The school lunch program was authorized for another two years beginning July 1.

The measure goes back to the house for consideration of the FSA and school lunch amendments.

As it left the house the bill carried legislative authority for continuance of the Rural Electrification Administration, the Farm Credit Administration, and other agricultural department activities for which congress had appropriated from year to year.

The bill, sponsored in the house by Representative Pace, Democrat, Georgia, grew out of the refusal of the house appropriations committee to approve appropriations for any agency not specifically created by congress.

While no specific appropriation is provided in the bill for either FSA or school lunches, War Food Administration officials have asked the senate appropriations committee to include authority for the FSA to spend $127,000,000 next year and for $50,000,000 for school lunches in the farm appropriations bill now pending in the senate appropriations committee.

Senator Russell, Democrat, Georgia, said funds for the operation of the two activities would be sought when he brings that bill to the floor next week.

A third amendment included by the senate would prohibit the collection of a penalty from farmers for flue-cured tobacco sold from acreage slightly in excess of federal allotments.

R. L. Smith, 14, Dies; Ill 2 Days

Raleigh Littleton Smith, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Smith, of 1016 Eulalia road, N. E., died yesterday at his home from intestinal poisoning after an illness of two days.

Mysterious circumstances surrounded the boy's illness, which at first appeared to be an attack of indigestion. He became severely ill late Monday night, and died a few hours later. Although he was apparently poisoned by spoiled food, no other members of the family or companions of the boy have become ill.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by two sisters, Margaret and Virginia Smith; a brother, Harold Smith, with the Army in Denver, Colo., and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Mullins, of Decatur.

He was a student at North Fulton High school, and a talented pianist.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

'Gay Nineties' Here Tonight

Joe Howard, composer of such hits as "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now" and "Louisiana Lou," will bring his celebrated "Gay Nineties Revue" to Atlanta tonight for a show at the municipal auditorium.

Heard regularly over the Columbia network, "Gay Nineties" features a large cast of well-known radio and musical comedy stars including Lillian Leonard, auburn-haired soprano; Art Farrar, Shaw and Lee, the Florodora Girls and the Gay Nineties quartet.

Howard is known as the George M. Cohan of Chicago since he gained fame on the musical comedy stage in that city at the same time the great Cohan was rising to fame in New York.

Many of Howard's better known shows played this city at the old DeGive opera house and later at the Atlanta theater. "The Time, the Place and the Girl," "A Stubborn Cinderella" and "Marrying Mary" are just a few of the many hits which were dramatized in music along Atlanta's Peachtree street just after the turn of the century.

The appearance of the "Gay Nineties Revue" here will be under the sponsorship of the Atlanta Lions Club and funds will go toward the support of this club's milk fund.

Red Bombers Smash Lwow

LONDON, May 2.—(AP)—Masses of Soviet bombers attacking the big rail junction of Lwow in old Poland last night destroyed six troop and ammunition trains and a number of warehouses and left 30 fires, Moscow announced tonight. The communique reported no essential changes on the land front after 11 days of sparring.

Not a single Soviet plane was lost in the attack on Lwow, one of the largest rail hubs in Europe and the bastion of German defenses in lower Poland, said the broadcast-bulletin.

On all sectors during Monday's fighting Russian forces destroyed 20 German tanks and 36 planes, the communique said.

No New Taxes Seen by Cook

AUGUSTA, Ga., May 2.—(AP)—Eugene Cook, Georgia revenue commissioner, told the Augusta Kiwanis Club that in his opinion the state's fiscal problems would be solved without imposing new state taxes.

Cook said yesterday he thought it premature to expect any fundamental changes in the state tax structure, which he declared was not obnoxious. Referring to the state deficit, Cook declared this could be liquidated by levying a sales tax, but that such a tax would not be encouraged in Georgia.

Overlapping taxation was given by Cook as the reason for the growing fiscal problem. He referred to the federal and state taxation on liquors and gasoline.

Cook declared he was at the point of exposing an existing "racket" to evade tax payments. He did not amplify the statement.

Senate To Call Avery, Biddle in Ward Case

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP)—Attorney General Biddle and Sewell Avery, chairman of Montgomery Ward & Company, will be called as witnesses in a senate investigation of government seizure of the mail order company's Chicago plant, it was disclosed today.

Meanwhile, house critics made it virtually sure that the inquiry will be double-barreled, and the National Labor Relations Board announced that a collective bargaining election will be held within seven days among the workers whose dispute with the company led to the seizure.

Chairman McCarran, Democrat, Nevada, of the Senate Judiciary Committee, announcing that he will call Biddle and Avery for testimony, said open hearings will start no later than next week, very shortly after the election.

SEEKS SENATE ACTION

At the same time Senator Byrd, Democrat, Virginia, said he will press tomorrow for senate action on his special resolution for an inquiry into the Ward case by McCarran's committee with particular reference to the use of troops.

McCarran was going ahead with plans for the investigation under a previous general resolution empowering the committee to look into executive orders of President Roosevelt, but he said he would welcome the special authority proposed by Byrd.

Earlier, speaking of the inquiry under the more general authority, McCarran said its purpose would be to "determine if new legislation is needed"—presumably clarification of the President's wartime powers to seize businesses.

Byrd said he wanted the special authority granted to emphasize the question of use of military power and to put the specific backing of the senate behind the investigation.

SABATH ASSURES ACTION

The second investigation was all but assured by the action of Chairman Sabath, Democrat, Illinois, of the Rules Committee, in reporting out for house action a resolution by Representative Dewey, Republican, Illinois.

Speaker Rayburn said it would be acted on Thursday or Friday. Passage was conceded.

Ward employes in Chicago were divided by the NLRB into two units for the election and for collective bargaining. One group comprises workers in the warehouse, mail order house and retail store. The other takes in those on the administrative pay roll.

The union, the United Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Employes (CIO), had sought to lump all into one unit. The company had asked that there be four units, splitting the warehouse workers and the mail order employes off from those in the retail store.

George J. Bott, NLRB regional director in Chicago, will fix the exact date of the election and supervise it.

"WIDE CONSTERNATION"

In announcing his witnesses, McCarran told reporters:

"The widespread consternation this act (the Ward seizure) has caused in America, and the uneasiness of business as a result of it, warrants very definite acts of Congress to fix an alignment as to what may or may not be done to private business, private enterprise and to the private individual in his pursuits.

"Basing our whole thought emphatically on the premise that this is a government of law, the judiciary committee is going into this investigation to determine whether any individual or agency of government has set himself or itself up as superior to the law."

Sabath's action forestalled a plan of Democrats Cox, of Georgia, and Smith, of Virginia, to force the Dewey resolution onto the floor. Cox said he had the signatures of 11 members of the Rules Committee on his petition for a special meeting of the group and if Sabath had not released the resolution "we intended to go in and hold a meeting and do it ourselves."

Cox criticized Sabath on the floor for reporting the resolution in his own name after openly opposing it as "a political move."

Ward Counsel Hits FDR's Legal Authority

CHICAGO, May 2.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's legal authority to order seizure of Montgomery Ward & Company's Chicago plants came under direct attack in federal court today.

Harold Smith, counsel for the vast merchandising and mail order firm, challenged the constitutionality of the White House action, and pleaded for judicial determination of "just how far the executive can reach with this dreadful and terrible power."

He assailed—and Attorney General Francis Biddle defended—the procedure of the government in taking possession of the facilities last Wednesday after Sewell Avery, chief executive officer of the company, had refused to accede to directives of the Presildent and the War Labor Board to extend an expired contract with a CIO union.

They concluded arguments before Judge William H. Holly, who announced he would hand down a decision Monday in a case watched throughout the nation as a test of the wartime power of the President.

Stating it had been contended that the national emergency gave the President, as commander-in-chief of the armed forces, "extraordinary power of seizure," Smith declared:

"This position is fallacious and no law or constitutional provision confers such a power or authorizes its exercise."

He maintained the seizure was contrary to Article 4 of the bill of rights and violated Article 5 of the bill. He stated the commander-in-chief was entitled to respect, loyalty and co-operation, and added:

"But I strongly resist any notion that in the guise of his military powers he can ignore the bill of rights and arrogate to himself despotic powers against which free people have been protected since the days of the Magna Carta. . . . No justification for the seizure can be found in the power of the President as chief executive or commander-in-chief."

Alabamans Call For Race Peace

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 2.—Charging that current attempts being made to stir up antagonism between the races in this state are a serious threat to Alabama's war production, in face of the impending invasion of Europe, 400 leading white Alabamans today issued a statement calling on all patriotic citizens to condemn every effort through press and radio to arouse race hatred.

"We consider it our sacred obligation to Alabamans in the armed forces and their fathers and mothers at home to protest the actions of those men and newspapers which seek to disturb the present peaceful relations between the races and divert the attention of Alabama from the cause of speedy victory," the statement said.

The signers included many ministers, superintendents of education, teachers, probate judges, mayors, union leaders, women's organizations, physicians and housewives, from every section of the state. The signers deplored especially the injection of the race issue into Alabama's political campaign, expressing the belief that "those who resort to such tactics misjudge the people of Alabama and their devotion to the Democratic faith and the ideal of Christian brotherhood.

Legionnaires Seek Purge Of 'Primary' From Laws

American Legion Post No. 51 at East Point has asked Governor Arnall to call a special session of the legislature to repeal all references to primaries from the state laws and leave the primary to be regulated and conducted purely as a party matter.

The Legion post deplores the recent United States supreme court ruling which permits Negroes to vote in the Democratic white primaries.

Favorable Reports on 'Oleo' Quoted In Revised Edition of Iowa Pamphlet

AMES, Iowa, May 2.—(AP)—Iowa State College made public today the revised edition of a pamphlet it withdrew nearly a year ago after sharp protests by dairy groups because it compared oleomargarine favorably with butter.

The revised edition contained no direct comments on the comparative nutritive value and palatability of oleo and butter, but did quote two other research groups as saying the comparison was favorable.

The revision stated that the National Research Council and the Council on Foods and Nutrition of the American Medical Association had reported that present available scientific evidence had indicated no nutritional differences were observed when fortified margarine was used in place of butter in mixed diets. Ninety per cent of all oleo sold domestically is fortified, the pamphlet added.

The original pamphlet flatly declared that tax and license fee restrictions on oleo should be removed to encourage consumption, but there is no such statement in the revision. The new issue contained a page discussing taxes and license fees on oleo and declared that such restrictions "encourage retaliatory action."

O. H. Brownlee, research associate of economics at Iowa State and the author of both pamphlets, said there was no attempt in the revised edition to present conclusions and recommendations concerning oleomargarine. "We left it up to the reader to draw his own conclusions," he added.

Housing Case Won by City

City attorneys, fighting against emergency war housing development in Westmeath Park, West End, won a victory yesterday when Judge Paul S. Etheridge sustained a demurrer to the mandamus petition of Defense Homes, Incorporated.

The city won its battle through a technicality, Judge Etheridge ruling that the petition of the contractors had been directed against the wrong persons.

After announcing his decision, Judge Etheridge began hearing immediately on another demurrer offered by the city to a mandamus petition filed by Hillside Park, Incorporated, in which these contractors are seeking to complete work on housing begun on Erin avenue in Capitol Hills.

WESTMEATH PETITION

The Westmeath Park petition had sought to force the City of Atlanta, Clarke Donaldson, chief of construction; W. Zode Smith, superintendent of the water department, and Dewey Johnson, city electrician, to comply with a council ordinance authorizing the West End development. Council, after authorizing the subdivision in February, rescinded its action in March.

Judge Etheridge said:

"My sympathies are with the plaintiff. The plaintiff, however, is seeking to compel the ministerial agents of the city to perform a work on which they have no authorization from city council."

HILLSIDE'S FIGHT

The Hillside Park petition was directed against the mayor, 18 members of council and Donaldson, Smith and Johnson. This fight is to compel the city to live up to the contract it is reputed to have entered into with the builders when the ordinance permitting the subdivision was first passed.

The hearing on the city's demurrers in the Hillside Park case was continued until Thursday morning.

John L. Westmoreland, attorney for Defense Homes, Incorporated, said yesterday he would reserve further action until he learns what the decision will be in the Hillside Park case.

Mrs. J. R. Plunkett, 65, Succumbs in Columbus

Mrs. J. R. Plunkett, 65, of Columbus, died yesterday at her home after a long illness.

Funeral services will be held at 4 p. m. tomorrow at Britton & Dobbs Funeral Home in Columbus. Burial will be in Riverside cemetery there.

A native of Porterdale, Mrs. Plunkett had lived in Columbus more than 20 years. She was a member of the Rose Hill Methodist church.

Seven Murders Solved By Atlanta Police Force

Atlanta police solved five murders committed here during the month of April, according to the monthly report of the crime bureau of the police department. In addition, the police solved two murder cases which came over from previous months. All of these cases involved murders in which Negroes were the victims.

Property reported stolen during April amounted to $65,078. Stolen property recovered during the month had a value of $44,084. In this list were 65 automobiles, of which 50 were recovered.

During the month, also, there were five traffic fatalities.

Sam Wilkes Presented With Silver Loving Cup

Sam Wilkes, retired railroad official, has been presented with a silver loving cup by the Old Guard Battalion. The cup was accepted by Mrs. Wilkes, as Wilkes was unable to attend the meeting, held recently at the Lake Phoebe clubhouse.

The presentation was in tribute to Wilkes' long years of service with the organization. Wilkes lives at the Georgian Terrace hotel.

Jury Recessed In Ryals Trial

Temporary recess of the jury in the case of Jack Bryant Ryals, charged with violating the Selective Service Act, was ordered in federal court here by Judge E. Marvin Underwood after a motion for a directed verdict of innocent had been introduced by Hal Lindsay, defense attorney.

The move was made after R. W. Martin, assistant United States attorney, rested the case for the government. Judge Underwood, in ordering the court recess until 11 a. m. today, said he wished to consider the various statutes and "very serious points of law" involved in the case before he made his decision.

According to evidence shown by the defense, Ryals, 32, a tall, blond representative of the Jehovah's Witness faith, was originally classified by a local draft board as a conscientious objector. State boards affirmed the decision. However, under an appeal to the President's appeal board, it was held that Ryals was a minister and entitled to a 4-D classification.

Later evidence showed the local board reopened Ryal's case reclassified him as a conscientious objector. In his motion for a directed verdict, Lindsay contended that the local board reclassified Ryals "without justification."

The prosecution contended that certain evidence introduced by the defense to show that Ryals "would not fight for his country" but would "trust in God to protect him and his family" were grounds for the local board to reclassify him as conscientious objector. The local board, according to a statement by Martin, reopened Ryal's case because it still believed him to be healthy and capable of serving his country.

British Representative, ReginaldHolland, Visitor

Reginald Holland, a representative of the British Empire Chamber of Commerce, was in Atlanta yesterday to discuss postwar trade conditions and possibilities between this country and Britain.

Holland, who is a native of England, is touring this section of the country in a brief survey of trade possibilities. He will be in Birmingham, Ala., today.

British Consul Writes Mrs. Joe A. Brown Of Death of Mother in France in 1943

Through the British consul in Lisbon, Portugal, a personal friend of hers, Mrs. Joe A. Brown, of 13 Barksdale drive, learned only yesterday of the death of her mother, Madame Cecile Grenier, which occurred December 5, 1943, in Chambery, France. She was 77 years old.

The former Mlle. Cecile Clair, of Lyon, France, she was married in June, 1899, to Dr. Gabriel Grenier in Chambery. The best man was Lucien Poincare, brother of Raymond Poincaire, former president of the French republic. After having taught school for 42 years, 31 of which were spent at the University of Chambery, Madame Grenier retired in 1928 and came to the United States, where she spent a year with her daughter, Mrs. Brown. She held the highest title a French teacher can have, that of Agregee of Sevres, and also the decoration of Palmes Academiques.

During World War 1, Madame Grenier gave much of her time to Red Cross work and received a diploma which her daughter treasures at her home here as well as many of her mother's souvenirs. Madame Grenier was a staunch patriot, and the sad conditions in which she had lived since the fall of France and especially since the occupation, combined to hasten her death. In addition to her daughter here, she is survived by two grandchildren, Mrs. T. J. Garanflo and Gerald Norman Brown.

C. Dillingham Dies on Trip

Charles William Dillingham, 52, of Atlanta, died Sunday night in Richmond, Va., while on a business trip.

Funeral services will be held at 3:30 p. m. today at Spring Hill, the Rev. William V. Gardner officiating. Burial will be in West View cemetery.

Dillingham, who was zone manager in the Atlanta office of the W. S. Tyler Company, Cleveland, Ohio, for many years, had returned to the city a few weeks ago to resume his position, after serving as manager of the Philadelphia office and in the Cleveland office.

He was born in Rock Hill, S. C., and was graduated from Georgia Tech in 1915. He was a Mason and a member of the First Presbyterian church.

He is survived by his wife; one daughter, Mrs. Anthony Winkler, of Williamsburg, Va.; a son, Private Charles William Dillingham Jr., U. S. Army, and two sisters, Mrs. James P. Thomas, of Hilton Village, Va., and Mrs. William E. Riley, of Arlington, Va.

Preceding the meeting there will be a directors' meeting at 6:30 p. m., when new members will be elected. During the year, the club has contributed to the Red Cross and British Relief Society, and has purchased War Bonds.

Negroes Cast Primary Votes

By The Associated Press

Negroes voted, unchallenged, at several polls in Democratic primary elections in Alabama and Florida yesterday, but were refused ballots in at least two cities.

Ten Negroes, whose appearance at a Mobile (Ala.) voting place coincided with the arrival of magazine photographers, were met at the entrance by Deputy Sheriff Frank Bryor, who explained that the primary was restricted to white electors. The Negroes departed without incident.

EIGHT CAST VOTES

Officials at this precinct said she was not refused a ballot, but was asked to wait until they could obtain a legal ruling on her qualifications.

At another polling place in Tallahassee eight Negroes, some faculty members of the Florida Agriculture and Mechanical College, were permitted to vote. They were among 19 Negroes who registered as Democrats even before the U. S. Supreme Court ruled, several weeks ago, that Negroes could vote in Texas Democratic primaries.

In another exception, two Negroes appeared at a voting place in Montgomery, Ala., but were not allowed to vote. Election officials said one's name was on the qualified electors list, but the other was not listed.

In Birmingham, Ala., Negroes voted, as they usually do, in the Democratic primary, but only a small percentage of the several hundred qualified were seen at polls.

NEGROES REGISTERING

In Miami, the office of Carl Holmer Jr., supervisor of registration, said Negroes were voting exclusively in the Republican primary, also held in Florida today.

In Atlanta, Negroes were flocking to registration polls and Negro schools were instructing students in ballot casting procedure. One Negro said Negro ministers were asking those registered to vote in Georgia's July 4 Democratic primary to stand during Sunday services.

Reports from Columbus, Ga., revealed that more than 75 Negroes, many of them high school students, have registered in Muscogee county within the last two weeks to set a new record registration figure. Tax Commissioner Sterling W. Dudley said a number of teen-age Negroes registered shortly after the 18-year-old voting law was passed. He added that those who will reach their 18th birthday before November 7 have taken advantage of a recent decision by Attorney General Head ruling them eligible to register now.

BANK CLEARINGS GAIN

Bank clearings yesterday totaled $20,100,000, as compared to $14,300,000 on the corresponding day last year, according to the Atlanta Clearing House Association.

'D' Day—A Place Called Gethsemane

At some hour, day or week, any time now, an order will be given. Ships, planes, men will begin to move toward the appointed objectives and our Gethsemane of this war will have begun.

Preparation for it is so enormous it is difficult to describe it. The invasion of Sicily called for the greatest gathering of shipping in wartime history.

The invasion, when it strikes, likely will come from three to five fronts. Establishing a beachhead is but the first step. The beachhead must immediately be supplied with more men. The flow of supplies to them must be constant and heavy. Before they can attempt to move inward in any force they must have on the beach at least two weeks' supplies and replacement troops either landed or on the way.

Tremendous shipping, landing craft and small craft of all kinds will be required. They must have adequate air coverage for their operations.

Multiply that by five.

It is so vast a task as to stagger the imagination and those who see it will remember it with awe.

Be sure the men are waiting with growing tension. They know no more about it than we at home except that about them they can see the gigantic stockpiles of ammunition, acres of tanks, trucks, jeeps and supplies of all sorts.

When the word comes all this will come alive and begin to move—millions of shells, thousands and thousands of trucks, cars and tanks, at least a million men, off to write one of the greatest chapters in man's history.

For us at home there is a test beyond that of waiting.

We have shown, some newspapers, radio stations and individuals, a surprising lack of good sense with regard to German propaganda. The Germans have been able to make many, many front pages, many many radio broadcasts, and have managed to excite to hysteria thousands of persons by the simplest of tricks. They have announced the day as sometime between May 1 and May 17. Before that they had announced it in March and again in April. They announced they had bombed "massed shipping," as they well may have. It is massed, as it must be, for the invasion.

The greatest test will be this—

When the invasion comes, the German radio and the radios in Spain, Sweden and Switzerland, will begin to broadcast German claims of great slaughter of Americans in the invasion.

They know we expect men to be lost, so they will exaggerate. We may expect to hear of a half million killed on the first day. There will be horror piled on horror as the Germans falsely report on the invasion—all designed for us at home.

The test is this—will we show a part of the courage and calmness of the men who do the invading? Or will we become hysterical and go to pieces as a people?

The Germans expect us to do just that.

Welcome, Peanut Growers, Processors

Atlanta is happy to be host to the National Peanut Council.

Not only do members of the association help bring wealth to Georgia and the peanut-producing states of the south, but they bring encouragement for the future.

The peanut is a noble product and we never understood why it was used to describe certain of the politicians the state and nation have had in the past. It deserves a proper place in our affections.

The council officials have announced that in 1938 the average American consumed six pounds of peanuts. Last year the per capita consumption was 11 pounds. This is a somewhat startling figure, but a correct one. It has not startled some fathers who take their small sons to baseball games. The fathers are surprised to learn the per capita consumption is not much more.

Georgia's peanut acreage offers an eye-opening example of the growth of the peanut business. In 1940 the state planted 500,000 acres in peanuts. In 1943 this had grown to 1,500,000 acres and this year there will be 1,800,000 acres in peanuts.

The price ceilings imposed, at first thought to be ruinous, turned out to be a blessing in disguise. Since edible peanuts brought more money that is where they went. Georgia now has 53 shelling plants and 24 crushing plants. The shelling plants, for the edible goobers, have expanded amazingly in three years both as to plant capacity and the working season.

So, three rousing cheers for the peanut. This week he is king. And long may he and his prosper with our state.

Ernie Pyle

Millions of Americans felt a personal gratification at yesterday's news that Ernie Pyle, whose daily column appears on The Atlanta Constitution's opposite editorial page, had been awarded a Pulitzer prize.

For Ernie Pyle, more perhaps than any other American newspaperman, has captured the hearts and fancy of the great American public.

His daily pieces, dealing with the minor—yet never unimportant—details of combat life have provided a comprehensive and intriguing picture of the lives of average American boys under fire.

It is a real tribute to Pyle's style and choice of subject-matter that millions of fans feel very vividly that they know him intimately, that he is the recipient of thousands of letters and gifts from those he has never met and yet who, through his dispatches, have come to know and love him.

Ernie Pyle deserved the Pulitzer award. For certainly he has rendered an outstanding service to our overall war effort.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

(The Constitution welcomes letters from its readers. They must be signed, should not exceed 200 words.)

Friendly to South

Editor, Constitution: As a native-born southerner, I am constantly chagrined by the unsympathetic handling which Dixie gets in northern newspapers. It was refreshing then to come across the inclosed editorial in yesterday's New York Post. Won't you please reprint it so that southerners may know that at least one Yankee newspaper understands their problems?

U. N. FREEMAN.

Brooklyn.

The editorial:

THE SOUTH

After reading some southern politicians' comment on the supreme court decision that gives Negroes the ballot in Texas, it would be easy to picture the entire south as the abode of crazy-eyed lynchers and moronic snuff-dippers with no decent instincts or human sensibilities.

It would be easy to do that—and harmful, too. Nor would it be fair. Having kicked the south around economically for the last eighty years, it ill behooves us, while holding it down in the gutter with one hand to use the other to point the finger of scorn.

The south never had a chance in American life. Its economic relationship to the rest of the nation was always cockeyed. And from there it is only a step to cockeyed race relationships. Remember that in 1937 the average per capita income in the United States was $604. But in the south it was $314 and Negroes got even less.

The south has become our India. We extract tons of raw materials from its rich forests, we erode its land for its cotton and tobacco. Up to ten years ago we maintained a high tariff policy that cut the south off from markets for its agricultural products while at the same time it forced the south to buy northern manufactures at plus-tariff prices.

Remember that even the south's war-boom prosperity is a sickly growth. Almost all the large war plants are northern-owned branch factories.

How stable a society can you erect on such foundations? The south is a frustrated land, and the Negro is its whipping boy.

What is to be done? The first step is to encourage and work with the powerful individuals and groups in the south who are genuinely trying to help their section.

For every Rankin and Bilbo there is a Ralph McGill, a Virginius Dabney, a Herbert Agar, a Frank Porter Graham, a John Temple Graves, a Jonathan Daniels, a Mark Ethridge, a Thomas J. Hamilton, a Howard W. Odum. These men are not just a small collection of do-gooders. All but one is a newspaper editor, publisher or writer and their influence reaches into many homes.

Another is the president of the south's greatest university—that of North Carolina. The University of Texas is becoming another focal point for southern liberal ideas.

These men have not been content to speak through their columns alone or to stick to their college classes. They have organized interracial conferences, at Durham and at Atlanta, and have begun the delicate task of placing on a sound basis the work of interracial amity.

We don't agree with all of them or with all that they do. But they are as opposed to the Rankin-Bilbo south as any of us.

We must, however, remember that words about tolerance and races getting together are of no value when the society in which they are spoken is sick and undernourished.

The south must get a fair economic break. More industry must be brought in. Since 1935, nearly a million white southerners have joined in the same trade unions with Negroes. That is great progress.

The south needs more TVA's. The TVA has brought new industries and raised the income of the Tennessee Valley by 75 per cent since 1933. This must be duplicated. Freight differentials must be abolished and the interest rate on capital lowered to northern levels.

We hail the supreme court's decision to give Negroes the vote. There must be further liberalization of election law, including an end to the vile poll taxes. We abhor and detest the Rankins and Bilbos and Talmadges.

But we also note that Talmadge was badly licked in his state in 1942; that the south is producing novels like "Strange Fruit" and authors like Lillian Smith; that its universities are beginning a renaissance of learning; that you will find in some of its newspapers some of the best expressions of American liberalism; that in the southland there is a genuine capacity for self-criticism and a genuine understanding of the need for change.

The change is terribly slow. We simply ask that while it goes on the south be treated as a friend who has a terrible problem and who needs help, rather than as a nasty outcast.

Fair For All

Editor, Constitution: Congratulations on your fine and fair editorial on the Montgomery Ward & Company case. As you so ably point out a law which must be enforced when labor is at fault must equally be enforced when employers disobey.

Bus travel in wartime has taken all the mystery out of that inexhaustible sedan in the Ringling show—the one that disgorges 24 clowns.

Maybe the household columns can help with the quadrennial problem: What's a good way to get a candidate off the lapel?

What a fate! Caught between a political right wing and a left wing, New York's Fiorello may wind up as a pressed flower.

Joe Goebbels Says We Are Suckers

One night about five years ago, Mr. Orson Welles, the wonder boy, got on the radio with his regular program of fantasy.

This time he described a sudden invasion from Mars. The egg-headed, barrel-chested, spindly-legged warriors from Mars were landing in space ships. Since he is an expert in his field, Welles had the script worked out so that there would be interruptions by a small town or so reporting the men from Mars had just taken the police station and city hall and were putting the torch to the rest of the town.

What happened? Did adult America flick off the radio program as being too ridiculous for adult minds, or did it listen with amusement to a sort of Superman comic strip on the air?

We only know what a large segment of the population did.

One man committed suicide.

Literally thousands of others became absolutely hysterical, fleeing their homes or barricading themselves. Telephone systems, especially those in the east where the program had its greatest listening audience, were swamped. Police stations were deluged with people and calls.

Over in Germany, a fellow named Joe Goebbels seized on that. Always smart at propaganda, the Germans salted that one away for future use.

They have tried it on us a few times.

All of us have fallen, one time or another, for German reports out of Sweden and Spain.

Right now we have allowed the Germans to make up our minds that the slaughter will be terrible when we invade. It is so logical that all they had to do was say so and allow a few pictures of super-looking guns and long rows of tank traps to be sent to this country.

The job was done. They had sold us on the fact that we were sure to have a million men killed.

THE TRUTH? Now, no one knows what the truth is. But the American and British staff officers believe we can do the job with about 5 to 10 per cent of the invasion force killed and badly wounded. That is an unpleasant figure, but very, very moderate compared with what the average American believes.

He believes it because the Germans have subtly, but firmly, put it in his mind.

The further truth is that he does not realize it and would resent it if personally charged with having accepted German propaganda.

But it is true.

There will be more of this propaganda.

The Germans, at the start of this war, back in the days when we spoke of it as a "phony war," won many battles with propaganda.

They drove a wedge between the French and English with ridiculous ease. They demoralized most of the French troops in the Maginot Line with the oldest sort of trick.

They kept pounding away, day after day, saying the English soldiers were having it free and easy with the French wives left back in the towns and in Paris.

They even had sent, by their swarms of agents and Fifth Columnists in France, letters to many of the soldiers purporting to come from an anonymous friend, telling of the wife's infidelity with an English soldier. They employed many elaborations of this trick.

They used another old one.

They kept saying, by air, pamphlet and by loudspeaker, that the English would let them down; that England would fight to the last Frenchman, and so on.

They will try that on us. Indeed, they already have, and many of our local Quislings and certain America Firsters have been saying that a long time, stopping only when the casualty lists of English dead, wounded and missing appeared.

IN TRAINING So, I think all of us at home should go into training for the invasion. (I wish we would reconsider and stop all this foolishness of blowing the sirens when the invasion begins. There will be strain enough without those nerve-shattering things blowing.)

We should, I think, firmly resolve one thing. That is, not to believe the German reports of the invasion.

They surely will try two things.

1—They will insist, in many variations from as many stations as possible, that we are being thrown back with tremendous slaughter. They will make it sound many, many times more bloody and horrible than it will be. And it will be bad enough. There will be several days of this and the Germans will pour it on. I hope newspapers and radio stations will report it, but will treat it not as news but as propaganda, realizing it to be what it is—an enemy weapon.

2—They will say over and over again that the English are failing; that they are letting us down; that the Americans are bearing the whole load; that the English are waiting to reap the glory. At the same time, on waves beamed only to England, they will repeat this propaganda, saying to the English that the Americans are failing and the English doing the dying.

They take us for a people gullible and easy to fool and, to tell the truth, we have given them reason to believe it.

Let us resolve not to be taken in when the day comes.

RALPH T. JONES

Old Doc Hippocrates Was Pretty Sensible

The doctor and I had been chatting about the changes in medical treatment for the various ills to which flesh is heir. How the treatments and prescriptions of doctors of only a generation or two back were today outmoded, with new discoveries in curative drugs and so on.

So, I looked up a standard reference work to see what it had to say about Doc Hippocrates, that Greek physician who lived four or five centuries before the birth of Christ, and whose written standard of ethics is still the ideal to which all doctors subscribe. The Hippocratic oath was sworn to by young men beginning medical practice and they've never been able to improve on it.

However, getting back to our subject, I read that "the chief therapeutic agents of the Hippocratic school were diet, medicinal waters, fresh air and gymnastics." Not a bad basis for treatment, at all. The medical profession must have retrograded badly between Hippocrates' day and those dark ages when noxious compounds suggestive of a witch's brew were considered just the thing and when barbers were called upon to bleed patients suffering from almost anything.

GRANDFATHER'S PRESCRIPTIONS This doctor with whom I was talking is the son of a doctor and the grandson of a doctor. A family heritage, you see. He told me he had, treasured at home, many of the favorite prescriptions used by his grandfather. Some of them, he said, were still used, but many called for drugs whose very names are unfamiliar today. Some of them, undoubtedly, are still used but under different names and their old identities have long been lost. Many of them, though, have disappeared completely from the druggist shelves.

I was reminded of an ancient physician, retired, who complained because his retirement was brought about by a medical board which thought him unfit for active practice when his eyesight became so poor he could no longer read a clinical thermometer.

"Shucks," said the old man, "I didn't even have a thermometer the first 10 years I practiced."

And my doctor friend of today remarked that this wasn't so startling as it sounded. "You'd be surprised how little use I have for a thermometer myself," he said. "If a patient's temperature is high enough to be dangerous you know it without a thermometer, and if it isn't it doesn't matter anyway. And I do think that the constant use of thermometers by mothers has made it tougher than it need be on many children. They get too excited over a degree or so of temperature and think they've got to start dosing the poor kids right away."

HOMEOPATH OR ALLOPATH All of which reminded me of the physicians of my own youth in England.

There were two schools of medicine in those days, homeopath and allopath. Everybody had faith in one and utter scorn for the other. You patronized a physician of one belief or the other and you were just as faithful as in a matter of religion. In religion you were a Protestant or a Catholic. In your choice of physician you were homeopath or allopath and the distinction was just as rigid.

The Jones family was homeopath.

Doc Smith, the family physician, called in when one of us was too sick to respond to the home remedies which mother could apply, carried with him a little black case which contained all his medicines. They were in two forms. Pills and tinctures.

After diagnosing the trouble he would open that case and take out a tiny vial of white pills, tiny things like white shot, and the patient would be instructed to take one, or two, every hour. Then, perhaps, he would call for a glass of water and, from one of the bottles in his case, he would drip so many drops of some tincture into the water. And the instructions would be to take a teaspoonful of that medicated water every hour, or half hour, or something.

And the glass stood on the bedside table, with an envelope or piece of paper on top to keep out the dust, and a spoon handy.

Maybe in this age of sulfa and penicillin and other marvels, that sounds ridiculous. But we had faith in Doctor Smith and his pills and tinctures and they seemed effective and perhaps it is the faith as much as the ingredients that makes a prescription effect the cure.

Anyway, Doctor Smith and his homeopathic treatments were simple and easy to obey and to understand.

WESTBROOK PEGLER

The Ghost Talks

NEW YORK — Old Charlie Michelson's quiet little book about the Roosevelt government, "The Ghost Talks," is the least angry record of a bitter and strident time in our history that I have yet read; and one could wish, though necessarily without hope, that all of us could be as calm and as unconcerned with the rights and wrongs of issues and the whither of our drift. He depicts himself as a press-agent doing a job for a client, never, personally, as a world-saver, and seems to assume that everything will turn out all right; or, anyway, that what will be just had to be.

Not many of us are so detached and I must say that, as my recollection goes, the initial blame lies with Charlie Mike's client. Not content with their victory in 1932, instead of trying to heal wounds and unite the country, the Democrats were flippant, arrogant and threatening in their language and bearing, and presently fell to fighting among themselves in the same unseemly way. It is over on the left today that you find the most violent expressions of hatred flying between men who once were intimate friends. Brother John Lewis sneers at Brother Will Green and Brother Phil Murray charged that Brother John's faction of the labor movement plotted to kill him. Nor have even these dispatches ever attacked the Communists in the CIO as savagely as they have been raked by Phil Pearl, the press-agent of the AFL, in Brother Will Green's official publication.

Not Mad

Charlie, however, is unconcerned, not mad at anyone, although he does admit out loud that the great qualifications of Harry Hopkins to serve as counselor and first aide to the President in time of war have eluded him all these years. And strangely, he mentions some mysterious letters "of at least doubtful authenticity, supposed to be from Henry Wallace," whose "general purport was silly rather than evil." Inasmuch as these letters have been a subject of gossip in the newspaper business for four years, but never have been mentioned in print before, Mr. Michelson's mention of them now could seem to be an attempt to dispose of the vice president before the Democratic convention. He certainly knows enough about the tricks of publicity to realize that he has now provoked that very "unfavorable curiosity" which, in 1940, he so adroitly suppressed to avoid the storm that Hopkins feared.

The calm, planned management of political moves and the development of the President's court fight are explained in a way that leaves the citizen feeling that he was a victim then of a private game, played by experts and affecting his rights and his government, in which he was allowed to hear the clamor but not to see the moves. Reporters in Washington could speculate guardedly, but they could not know what Charlie knew and Charlie, as an employe, just went on serving his boss while politicians and less prominent citizens worked themselves into emotional lathers over the fate of the republic.

Calm Decision

It would be well for the country if everyone could put anger, resentment and apprehension out of the campaign and make his decision calmly on the issues, and accept it without rancor. But the debate has grown to fury, and those who have been demanding unity in the name of the fighters overseas have no more right to speak for the fighters than those who refuse to get unified with them. It is far less angry in the daily press than in the left-wing publications, many of which today are attacking not only Republicans, but groups of their old political comrades, in terms reminiscent of the old campaigns of Huey Long in Louisiana. The standard press, with few exceptions, observes most of the normal restraints and, even in the Montgomery Ward case, an important issue in the presidential election if Mr. Roosevelt is the candidate, the words employed are dignified still, although the criticisms of the President's action is as vigorous as any he has received from 1932 down to date.

Whoever handles the Democratic publicity this time will find himself unable to pitch the key. The political literature of the extreme left is out of control and no material, such as Charlie produces, would ever pass for publication.

One such essay recently called a southern senator a jug-eared little rat.

Is that any language in a campaign for unity behind the President?

SERVICE

(Editor George McNabb in the Newnan Herald.)

A church organization recommends the making of wills NOW and tells why it is important that wills should be made. A handy list of church groups needing money is attached.

This is a good idea.

Recently one of our most popular national magazines (well, if you insist, it was Reader's Digest) came out with a piece about how important it is to make your will right away. One night one of our more elderly ladies read this article after retiring for the night. Fired with the persuasive words of the writer, she piled out of bed immediately, put on some clothes and wrote out her will pronto. Only trouble was, she had to have a witness. It happened to be press night, and the Herald office was the only place showing any lights. And to this office she came, document in hand. The editor and the printer's devil signed the papers, and she went back home happier for it all.

Just a part of the routine around a newspaper.

There's an Art To "Forcible Entry"

The annual school of the Georgia State Fire College gets under way here today with representatives of approximately a hundred fire departments from Georgia and neighboring states expected to be in attendance.

This is the first in an eight-year series, each to be given over to special problems inherent to the fire-fighting profession, as, for instance: hose-laying, hook-and-ladder driving, and breaking your opponent's kingdom row.

This year's curriculum includes courses in "forcible entry and minor extinguishment practices."

One learns new things every day. From the obvious enthusiasm and apparent ingenuity with which they tackle the job, I had always thought firemen came by their forcible-entry tactics naturally, improvising, perhaps, as they went along.

As a long-standing admirer of veteran practitioners of the ungentle art of forcible entry, it had never occurred to me but that forcible-entry experts were born and not made . . . although I could see how their careers might very well have been started by the gift, while still in their formulative years, of a Boy Scout ax.

Thus it is with great interest that I now learn that, when the slickered and helmeted laddies from station house 126 come rushing up and go merrily about their appointed task of batting down doors and kicking out windows, it is all according to a preconceived plan and the result of no little study and research.

Method in their madness? Who'd have thought it?

GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

Michelson's Book An Interesting One

WASHINGTON.—To those who read the two earlier American Magazine articles by Charles Michelson, retiring publicity pundit of the Democratic national committee, it will be evident that much of the cream has already been skimmed off his new book, "The Ghost Talks" (G. P. Putnam's Sons), which has just been released by the publishers.

For in those two articles is condensed the bulk of the interesting material going into the new volume.

Nevertheless, the book offers highly entertaining reading, even to those who had a preview of its contents through the recent magazine production. Particularly will it be interesting to political-minded persons who have followed the functions of government under the past 11 years of the New Deal.

While it is by no means confined to the goings-on in Washington during the period of the three Roosevelt administrations, many of its pages are devoted to that part of our recent and current history, and a number of inside stories are told to throw illuminating light on some of the incidents of the past.

OLD NEWSPAPERMAN It is doubtful that many men can be found among the living with journalistic careers more varied or more colorful than that of the veteran Michelson.

As an old-time Hearst reporter he has seen active service on the newspaper front all over the world. At one time or another he has been editor of a number of important publications, extending all the way from San Francisco to Chicago and New York. His last journalistic job before going with the Democratic national committee some 5 years ago was as head of the Washington bureau of the old New York World.

No one had any reason to doubt, therefore, that Mr. Michelson had a highly entertaining story to tell. What is equally important, his book shows that he has lost none of the inimical style which caused him years ago to be recognized as one of the most forceful writers in the country.

Whether he is telling about his first meeting with a pudgy-faced British youth named Winston Churchill during the Spanish-American War, or some other incident related to the inside workings of the New Deal, his story is equally fascinating. It is capable of holding the reader's interest throughout.

Covering the same ground as in the book, Michelson, in the magazine articles referred to, has already revealed the underlying causes behind the break between Big Jim Farley and President Roosevelt in 1940—a break which saw Farley, then the national party chairman, try to wrest the nomination from Mr. Roosevelt.

Now he gives the reasons for other breaks between the President and some of his party lieutenants in congress which heretofore have not been fully explored.

WHEELER MYSTERY It has always been something of a mystery, for example, why Senator Wheeler, of Montana, should have developed such a violent dislike of the President. Both being pronounced liberals, it has been difficult to understand why the two should have veered so widely apart politically.

Michelson traces the troubles back to the Chicago convention in 1932, which gave Mr. Roosevelt his first nomination for the presidency. Wheeler, he recounts, thought he should have been given second place on the ticket. The nod went to John N. Garner, then speaker of the house, because of the large Texas delegation which was brought over to the Roosevelt banner.

Senator Wheeler, we are told, had many heartburnings over his disappointment, "and has been grouchy ever since."

Something of the same disappointment is attributed to Senator Harry Byrd, of Virginia, in explanation of the bitter attacks he has made on the administration almost from the beginning. Byrd was a candidate for President at the Chicago convention. It is not recalled that he ever released his delegates.

With a gesture Michelson tends to write off the Wheeler and Byrd antagonism to disappointment—political soreheads who have never forgiven the President for what happened at Chicago.

"The Ghost Talks" takes its name, of course, from the reputation Michelson gained during his long service with the national committee as the leading ghost writer of the country. He is supposed to have written more speeches and inspired more statements coming from Democratic leaders than any man of his day. His caustic imprimature was so evident in most of the denunciatory remarks hurled at the Hoover administration that he acquired the title of "Charley the Smear," an intended aspersion that attests to the high quality of his efforts as a publicity director.

Though still living, Charles Michelson is already a tradition. He will go down in history as the ablest publicity director any political party ever had.

And, from reading his book, it must be evident that during these past 11 years of the New Deal he has been something more than a publicity man. He has moved in and out of the shadows of the White House in a confidential association with the President that has been shared by few other men.

History will accord him an important footnote in shaping the political complexion of our times.

This Time of Year The Foxes Walk

CANTON.—It is the spring of the year, and the foxes are slipping and you may have a good race when you go and you may not.

The fox is a family man. In the fall of the year, and in the winter, when the pups that came in the spring have left the den and gone out on their own, he does not mind taking a night off now and then and letting the dogs chase him. He gets as much fun out of it as the dogs. He runs awhile and then he stops to blow, running his tongue out and laughing as he hears the dogs, all tangled up in a thicket along a creek bank where he has run in the water to hide his tracks long enough to get himself a breathing spell.

But in the spring of the year he does not enjoy the race. He wants to hang around home with his vixen and his pups. He wants to trot out undisturbed and fob a henroost somewhere and bring a fat hen home so his old lady and the younguns can make a big fuss over him about what a good provider he is.

He will not get up and run. He does what the fox-hunters call "slipping." He just walks along ahead of the dogs, in a stately manner like a small town banker going home for lunch. He keeps his composure, and as he walks along in this way he sometimes keeps just a few hundred yards ahead of the dogs.

THE FOX KNOWS

He knows that if he allows himself to get excited and starts running he will leave a hot, breast high scent, and the dogs will hit this heavy scent and check out after him full tilt and he will have to scamper at a furious pace over hill and dale all night, losing his rest and missing a quiet evening at home with his family.

So he just strolls along, leaving very little scent, and the dogs have to trail along slowly, snuffling at each spot where he has put his foot. Sometimes, of course, he trots a little to gain a little distance, and then he circles and doubles like a rabbit, or walks a log like a squirrel, and the dogs have to unravel these tangles in his trail, moving along very slowly, and opening up with an indignant "ow, ow, ow," only once in awhile to keep the foxhunters waiting up on the ridge somewhere, encouraged.

I am indebted for this information to Mr. Mack Watkins, a zealous fox-hunter, who I picked up the other night on the highway south of Ball Ground, Ga., hitchhiking down to Canton to go foxhunting. Being a genial soul, he invited me to accompany him, and having nothing else to do at the moment but go home, I thought the idea was sound.

"PRETTIEST RACE"

"'Course, now, like I say," said Mr. Watkins, "we may have no race at all. But I was out t'other mornin' and had the prettiest race a man ever had. Dogs run across a clearin' in sight of me, packed together so you could put a blanket over 'em and every one of them opening up. Prettiest race I ever listened to. Had up a young red fox. Young grays are hardly old enough to run yet, but young reds are out and they make a good race. Maybe we'll get one u..."

First we had to get up a Mr. Martin Key, custodian of Mr. Watkins' dogs. The dogs were delighted to see us and showed great enthusiasm for the enterprize, leaping upon Mr. Watkins and licking him eagerly. Mr. Key did not leap with joy, having been aroused from his bed, but he came along, bringing a lantern.

We drove off down what was reputed to be a road, past Mr. Key's house and on into the woods and after awhile the road gave out and Mr. Watkins got out to release the dogs. He took them off into the darkness a goodly distance, his lantern growing dimmer and dimmer in the dark of the woods, while Mr. Key and I busied ourselves gathering brush to build a fire.

He came back, finally, and sat down by the fire, and we sat there, listening to the whippoorwills, while Mr. Watkins talked about fox-hunting.

"Now you take me," he said, "I am just an amateur foxhunter. But I do love to hunt, and I am building me up a pack of dogs. You take that dog Major, that old dog. He is what I call a rolling mouth dog. You wait till he opens up. Tony, he is a coarse mouth dog, he has got what they call a chop mouth, while that puppy, Red Lady, she sounds like she is going to be a squall-mouth dog. You just listen when they open up."

HEARD HOUSE-DOG

I listened. I guess I listened an hour, and all I heard was a house-dog, way off, and the whippoorwills, and the sound of an airplane. Finally, far off, I heard a deep "ooodle-oodle-oodle" sound Mr. Watkins leaped to his feet.

"That's old Major," he said. "That's old reliable, chawing on a trail." The chop mouth dog and the squall mouth puppy were silent.

There was a long silence from old reliable. Then he opened up again. In the next hour he must have given tongue three times.

The moon was sinking. Midnight showed on the hands of Martin Key's watch. Major oodled again. In the next hour we heard from him every five minutes, one long rolling bay and then silence. Mr. Watkins made more noise. He would leap to his feet periodically and utter a piercing yell. Major and the fox he was pursuing seemed to be circling, at a slow and majestic walk, around the knoll we sat on. They circled that way until the moon was low. I got up, stiff and sore from sitting on the cold wet ground.

"You say the reason the fox won't get up and run is because he had rather be at home with his family?" I asked.

"Yes," they said. "That is what the old fox-hunters say.

"Well," I said, "that convinces me that he is smarter than I am. Are you boys about ready to go in?"

They looked at me in surprise. "Why no," they said. "About daylight we are liable to get up a fine race."

I came on home and left them sitting there by the fire. For all I know they are sitting there still, while Major and Tony and Red Lady and the rest stroll after their walking fox, around and around the foot of the hill.

ERNIE PYLE

Dines With General Clark; Keeps His 'Touch'

NAPLES—(By Wireless)—When I'm caught talking with any one above the rank of major the other correspondents kid me and say, "You're losing the common touch, Ernie."

I try to excuse myself by saying, "Well, democracy includes the big as well as the little, so I have to work in a general now and then just to keep the balance."

Naturally there's nothing wrong with a general just because he's a general, and I have several mighty good friends who wear stars.

All of which is just a way of starting to tell you that I had dinner with Lieutenant General Mark Clark the other night. I had seen General Clark at a distance, but had never met him.

The most remarkable thing about our meeting was a letter I had received a few hours before, as I was setting out for General Clark's main headquarters in the country. I started reading my mail just before going over to meet the general. And I almost fell over at the return address on one envelope.

It was from Mrs. Mark Clark. Within five minutes after opening the letter I walked over and showed it to her husband.

The general said that if his wife was going to start writing me, he'd better have me court-martialed. I said, "Hell, if I were running this Army I'd have her court-martialed." We compromised by drinking a toast to her.

Our dinner was in a small, one-room, collapsible building, with the wind howling and blowing until we thought the building would really collapse in fact. There were three other correspondents at dinner, and four officers of the general's staff. We just ate and chatted and leaned back in our chairs as if we were at home. The general told us some things we didn't know before, and some things I can't print, but he didn't tell us when the war would end.

Running the Italian war has been a headache of tremendous proportions, and I for one do not think it General Clark's fault that the campaign has gone slowly. I thought that before meeting him, so no one can accuse him of charming me into saying that.

I found General Clark very congenial, and straightforward, too. He impressed me as a thoroughly honest man.

There is another lieutenant general in this area that I do know well. He is Ira Eaker, head of all the Mediterranean Allied Air Forces. We've been friends for more than 15 years.

I go up and have dinner with him now and then. He usually has four or five guests every evening. He flatters me by saying to his guests, "I knew Ernie when he wasn't anybody." I flatter myself by saying, "I knew the general when he was a captain."

I never leave the general's headquarters without his giving me some kind of present, and now and then he gives me something to send That Girl back in America. He is one of the most thoughtful men about doing little things for people that I've ever known.

General Eaker is nearly bald, likes to smoke cigars, and sucks frequently at a pipe. He talks with the slow clarity of a Texan. His voice is so low and gentle you can hardly hear him sometimes.

He likes to play volleyball late in the afternoon. He drinks almost none. His driver is a sergeant who has been with him for two years. One of his greatest traits is love and loyalty to his old friends of early years.

The air force staff live in trailers and tents in a lovely grove, and eat in one big mess hall where the general also eats with his guests.

The general lives in a wooden Dallas hut, fixed up with a big fireplace and deep lounges and pictures until it resembles a hunting lodge. It is lovely.

Every morning at 9:30 the general goes to his "war room," and in a space of 20 minutes receives a complete history of the war throughout the world for the previous 24 hours. In order to provide this comprehensive briefing, many of his staff have to get up at 5 o'clock collecting the reports.

General Eaker's job here is a tremendous one. He ran the great Eighth Air Force in England with distinction, but down here he has had to face problems he never had up there. In England it was purely an air war. Down here it is air and ground both. Further, his command is stretched over thousands of miles and includes fliers of three nations.

Integrating the air war with the ground war is a formidable task that hasn't yet been wholly accomplished. Doing that is General Eaker's biggest job right now, for he already knows about the other side of his job—which is to bomb the daylights out of fortress Europe.

Atlanta's Hospital Program in Need of Coordination

NOW YOU CAN SEE IT—NOW YOU DON'T

There's a legend carved in concrete over the entrance to a gray stone building on Butler street reading "Steiner Cancer Ward." Leading you to believe that Steiner is part of the larger Grady hospital next door, to which it is connected by a passageway.

But there's more to it than meets the eye.

Steiner is part of Grady. But again, it is not a part—depending on which way you look at it.

From one angle you will see Grady performing a large portion of Steiner's laboratory work, doing all its laundry, supplying it with drugs of various kinds, and furnishing beds for all its colored patients. Steiner and Grady appear to be one.

ANOTHER ANGLE

From another angle things are different. You will see that the two hospitals have separate kitchens, separate intake departments, separate maintainence crews, separate nurses homes, perform separate autopsies, and separately buy certain of the same medical supplies, kept in separate storerooms.

The passageway in many instances goes unused.

All because of differences regarding the administration of Steiner and Grady. The former was built and equipped with funds from the Albert Steiner estate, which still pays the salaries of the head physician and his assistant. Most of the expenses, however, are paid by the city of Atlanta. This year's appropriation is about $100,000.

Steiner at one time had its own administrative board, composed of the trustees of the Steiner estate, the mayor and two members of city council. Several years ago council placed Steiner and the Battle Hill Tuberculosis sanitorium under the Grady board of trustees, which had become a non-political, charter body removed from the storms of politics.

This was in line with the program of the League of Women Voters, which had long advocated establishment of one non-political board to administer all public hospitals. Such a board, the league believed, could co-ordinate and thus improve the services offered by the hospitals, and with material savings to the taxpayer.

Several weeks ago Alderman Gilliam and Councilman Couch introduced an ordinance in city council to re-create a separate board for Steiner. Alderman Gilliam commented that it was being run separately anyhow and that council might as well make it legal.

CO-ORDINATION NEEDED

Obviously, such a board would not be free from political considerations, no more than it was free of them in its former existence. But the worst feature would be that Steiner would become a separate institution instead of an integral part of a complete hospital program.

A co-ordinated program is necessary if the poor are to receive the best in hospital services. A patient seldom knows what his exact ailment is. He can't know whether to go to Grady or Steiner or Battle Hill. A central intake at Grady would solve his problem. It would also eliminate duplication of work in the intake departments. This and other duplications should be eliminated as soon as possible if we are to have integrated, efficient and economically-run public hospitals.

ONE MORE SLANT

There is another angle to the Steiner-Grady controversy—if you look at it from the position of the medical profession.

Grady hospital is a teaching as well as a service institution, due to its close connection with the Emory University Medical school. Students and internes are supposed to get complete training at Grady, working beside the specialists and visiting staffs on all types of cases.

But they seldom see a cancer case. Steiner has its own staff of doctors and internes entirely apart from those at Grady. The result is that Grady internes get little training in cancer diagnosis and treatment. Yet these are our practicing physicians of tomorrow.

Treatment of cancer is a specialist's job. But every doctor ought to be given some training in it so he can recognize it when he sees it.

HOSPITAL STUDIES

All health and hospital studies made in this area have recommended a co-ordinated hosptial program with central administration and a staff of specialists to carry out the medical program.

Steiner's staff, remaining under the Grady board, can and should continue to have complete charge of cancer patients. But these specialists should be relieved of all administrative duties. They can then devote their full time to the actual business of cancer treatment, diagnosis and research.

Air Transport Survey Starts

A survey on the transportation of commodities by air has been initiated in Atlanta by Walter A. Moehren, of the market analysis staff of Air Cargo, Inc., an organization formed by 16 major airlines to conduct research activities.

The information developed by Air Cargo, in co-operation with leading business establishments, will be helpful in determining the type and size of planes which will be most efficient for the increased volume of air shipments anticipated when planes are released for commercial use again.

In the survey here, analysts will study shipping and distribution practices among a selected group of representative manufacturers, wholesalers, retailers and service and financial establishments.

The studies will also cover airport cargo and ground-handling facilities, pick-up and delivery service, schedules and rates. The entire country will be surveyed during the next six months by the analysts.

Atlanta Military Order To Hear Capt. Payzant

Captain D. G. Payzant, of the U. S. Marine Corps, will relate his experiences in the South Pacific theater of war, where he saw recent action, in an address to the Atlanta Chapter of the Military Order of World Wars at its May meeting at the Capital City Club at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow.

During this meeting, the chapter will elect new officers and outline plans for the national convention of the Military Order of World Wars to be held in Atlanta in October, Arthur Madison, member of the Atlanta chapter, has announced.

SEDITION TRIAL STALLS

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP)—The trial of 30 persons charged with seditious conspiracy will be held up until contempt proceedings against one of the defense attorneys, James J. Laughlin, are decided Thursday. Justice Bailey, of the federal district court, today granted Laughlin until Thursday to prepare his defense against the contempt charges, which are based on allegations that he offered a series of motions "not in good faith" at the start of the now stalled sedition trial.

Five-Year-Old Boy Saves Brother, Sister From Fire

DEDHAM, Mass., May 2.—(AP)—Bobby was just another little boy when his mother went out to do some shopping this morning, but by the time she got back he was just as much a hero as any grown man.

Bobby's full name is Robert Dickey and he is five years old.

As Police Chief John B. Hartnett reconstructed the story, after talking to Bobby, this is what happened:

Bobby, his three-year-old sister, Beverley, and his 15-months'-old brother Kenneth, thought it was fun, lighting matches and blowing them out. Then, one of the flickers ignited a lace curtain and a moment later the living room was in flames.

Bobby wasn't able to pull Kenneth from the crib, so he tipped it over and took the baby in his arms. Escape by the front stairway was cut off.

"Beverly, you stay right behind me," he told his sister as he made for the rear stairway. She did, one hand grasping his shirt.

With smoke swirling around and terrific heat following them, little Bobby went down the stairs to the safety of the back yard.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP)—The Army announced today that Major General Allen W. Gullion has been relieved as provost marshal general to take an important but undisclosed overseas assignment. Brigadier General Archer L. Lerch has been designated acting provost marshal general.

REYNOLDS ON PATTON

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP)—Chairman Reynolds, Democrat, North Carolina, of the Senate Military Committee, said today that Lieutenant General George S. Patton will be given "every consideration" when the committee takes up his nomination for permanent rank promotion from colonel to major general, but, Reynolds observed, "he ought not go around talking about who is going to rule the world."

NEW BOOKS

A Biography Of Madame Chiang

CHINA'S FIRST LADY. By Helen Nicolay. New York: Appleton-Century. $2.

This is a biography of a citizen of the world who has appeared often in the headlines of the past few years. The story of Madame Chiang Kai-shek, "China's first lady," tells of "her early days as the child of Christian parents, her school days in Georgia and brilliant college career at Wellesley, and her return to China to become a leader in the political, intellectual and spiritual movements of the new China."

The book is a fascinating and inspiring one, showing that the author is well acquainted with her subject and well fitted to do writing of this type. She has written many other books for younger readers, among them biographies of Washington, Jefferson, Hamilton, Franklin, Jackson, Lincoln and Grant.

Although "China's First Lady" is primarily intended for younger readers, older ones will enjoy it as well. C. D. D.

"Traffic problems have been greatly increased by travel of service-men's wives"—War Information News item.

You see them in the waiting rooms, you see them on the street
And some are tired-out and grimed and some are fresh and neat.
They board a bus or local, or they grab an aeroplane
And settle down for Omaha, Los Angeles or Maine.
There's grim determination written on each anxious face,
For the shuttling of the soldier sets a wild and maddened pace
But with feminine persistence, on a trek of love intent,
She may miss him at the first place but she'll follow where he went,
'Til she comes where land and water and the loading docks define
The insuperable barrier, the "start" and "finish" line.
The traffic lanes are cluttered with the country-jumping males
But the female of the species can be deadly on the rails,
She can gypsy, she can hobo, she can travel, she can wait,
She's a wild and wooly mama at the ticket-puncher's gate.
There are wrinkles in her stockings, there are cinders in her hat
She is loaded down with bundles and a pink and sleeping brat—
So you'd better give her lee-way for she's got her bearings clear
And she's headed for the open like some early pioneer.
The soldier used to pack his kit and bid his bride farewell
And when he got away he did some things he couldn't tell
But the soldier now must watch his step for he is apt to find
When he turns around there stands the gal he thought he'd left behind.

Mann Act Case Convicts Seven

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP)—Seven women were convicted today of conspiracy to violate the Mann Act in the operation of Hopkins Institute, advertised as a swank massage parlor and described by FBI agents as a "million-dollar" call house.

An eighth defendant, a woman, pleaded guilty at the outset of the trial and testified for the government that women were sent from the institute for the purposes of prostitution.

The jury took only an hour and 20 minutes to reach a verdict. A date for the sentencing was not set. The penalty on conviction ranges from four months to two years' imprisonment.

The trial closed yesterday, without defense testimony and without introduction of the names of the institute's patrons allegedly recorded in a "little black book" seized in a raid on the institute by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in March, 1943.

Readjustment to Civilian Life Not Too Tough—Major Bell

By M. L. ST. JOHN.

It will not be as tough to readjust a soldier's personality and habits to civilian life as one would think, according to Major John Sammons Bell, veteran of South Pacific fighting who is now readjusting his own war career to the peacetime job of helping reform Georgia's prisons.

Major Bell, who was seriously wounded in action, has been named assistant state director of corrections. It is his task to supervise inspection of the state's 87 county public works camps and co-operate with wardens and county commissioners in carrying Georgia's penal reform program into the county camps.

Let the youthful major give you a minor, personal example of a quick readjustment to civilian habits:

"While I was on duty on the islands of the South Pacific, I thought nothing of waking up in the morning with a dead lizard beside me—which I had killed while rolling over in my sleep during the night. There were ants and scorpions galore. I would flick them out of my tooth brush and go right ahead and use it on my teeth. I lived with all kinds of insects and got used to them. But when I got back home, it was different.

"ANTS IN HERE"

"While I was in a hospital here in the United States recuperating from my wounds, my bath was drawn when I spied something crawling on the side of the tub. In a horrified tone, I yelled to the attendant: 'There are ants in here!' When he asked if there were many of them I looked again. For the life of me I could not see but two tiny ants. I, who had lived with filth and hundreds of thousands of ants for a year, was back home and had, at once, resumed my civilized habits of cleanliness. So you see it will not be difficult for most of our men to get accustomed to civilization again."

Bell missed death by inches when Jap bombers attempted to blast Allied gun emplacements in the New Georgia islands. His outfit virtually always had an Allied aerial umbrella for protection, but at this particular moment there were no planes overhead. The major was standing with some others at a battlefront soup kitchen, eating frankfurter soup.

"We heard some planes coming," Major Bell related. "One of the boys looked up, and said 'Those must be our planes now, and, by golly, they are twin-motored.' I knew we didn't have any twin-motored bombers on duty at that time, so I yelled: 'Hit the ground!' and fell on my face. Then came the swish of bombs dropping. A few boys had hit the ground with me. Most of those who did not were killed. I was seriously wounded."

PLASMA SAVES LIVES

Bell said the physician with the outfit was critically injured, and as a result the wounded received but little medical service until they returned to a hospital on another island. Many lives were saved through the administering of blood plasma.

MAJOR JOHN S. BELL
Says Readjustment Will Not Be Hard

Getting back to readjustment, Bell observed:

"The statement that there are no atheists in foxholes is true. The trials of front-line fighting are bringing out a faith in God among the boys. However, this religious fervor will not continue at full force when the boys come home unless the churches realize their responsibilities and offer an aggressive and understanding program of encouragment."

Bell, whose work deals in criminology, said America can prevent a postwar crime wave—such as followed World War No. 1—by proper planning in rehabilitation so servicemen may find jobs. A former high school teacher at Macon, Bell believes more soldiers will return to school after this war, with the federal government planning to finance such students.

As for the home front, Bell said he thinks the people are doing a fine job.

WANT SAME HOMELAND

"While the boys on the battlefield want their work to be properly appreciated and War Bonds must be bought to back them up, I do not think they want the lives of their people back home to be greatly changed by the war," he observed. "They want to come back to a homeland that is not greatly different."

Bell, who fought Japs for a year, believes that when the Allies whip Germany they have finished the hardest task.

Disagreeing with those who see a long war after Germany falls, Bell flatly predicted:

"Japan will fall within six to 10 months after Germany surrenders. We have already practically beaten the Japanese air force. Our Navy is far superior to the Jap Navy. We of the Army had a lot of work to do in co-operation with our Navy, and we find they seek and are eager for a general engagement with the Jap fleet. With just a small percentage of our total strength, we are on the offensive in the Pacific."

The major said the Japanese suicide myth has been overplayed greatly. While the Japanese are fanatical, they are smart enough to surrender when the combined Allied forces eliminate Germany, bypass the Pacific islands, and move on Japan itself, Bell concluded.

Methodists Debate War

KANSAS CITY, May 2.—(AP)—Methodists argued hotly today over whether the church should change its position of 1940 when it voted that it would "not officially endorse, support or participate in war."

The arguments, which are not expected to end until the 762 delegates to the general conference vote on the subject Thursday or Friday, started in a committee meeting after Dr. Albert E. Day, Pasadena, Cal., brought in a majority report of a subcommittee that the church should reaffirm its 1940 stand.

Charles C. Parlin, Englewood (N. J.) lawyer, came forward with a minority report which called for a determined stand to support the war. It held that "God himself has a stake in this struggle," and that the church must "assert the necessity of the use of military forces to resist an aggression which would overthrow every right which is held sacred by civilized men."

Parlin declared that only 600 Methodists were in conscientious objector camps, while more than a million Methodists were in the armed services.

Dr. Henry H. Crane, Detroit, speaking in favor of the majority report, said the whole point of the argument was: "Shall the church bless war?"

"I am a pacifist," he declared, "and it's inconceivable to me that the church ever should bless war."

April Ship Deliveries Are 154; For Year, 564

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP)—Ten of the fast, new victory ships were delivered in April compared with four in March, the Maritime Commission announced today, reporting that a "considerable change "is taking place in the trend of its construction program.

The swing to fast ships is proceeding as rapidly as possible, the Maritime Commission said.

Merchant ships of all kinds delivered in April totaled 154. The number was 152 in March.

April deliveries brought the year's total to 564 ships, totaling 5,709,642 dead weight tons, compared with 536 ships of 5,360,712 dead weight tons in the first four months of 1943.

Solon Urges Creation Of Permanent FEPC

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP)—U. S. Senator Robert F. Wagner, Democrat, New York, tonight urged creation of a permanent Fair Employment Practice Committee, backed by congress, to fight some labor practices he said were unfair and were directed particularly against the Negro.

Wagner, who said he sponsored the national labor relations act to remove economic inequality, said he now was "equally concerned about removing political inequality as well."

He spoken in Carnegie Hall at the presentation of the third an- Workers Defense League to A. Philip Randolph, international president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters (AFL). Randolph received the award for a "lifetime devoted to fighting for Negro workers and the common man."

Wagner said the old National Labor Board was not effective until it was backed by an act of congress.

"I believe firmly that we must have a permanent Fair Employment Practice Committee, strengthened by all the support that can be given it by an act of congress. Toward that end, I pledge to you a continuation of my efforts to bring about this most necessary action."

ANNE HAYES IN AFRICA

Anne Muse Hayes, daughter of Jack D. Hayes, of 332 8th street, recently arrived in North Africa to serve as an American Red Cross secretary, the Atlanta Red Cross chapter has been advised. Prior to enlisting with the Red Cross, she was employed by Arthur Anderson & Company here.

Lt. O. L. Buford, Georgian, Dead

Lieutenant Owen L. Buford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude O. Buford, of Tallulah Falls, has been reported as killed in action on February 29 in a telegram from the War Department. He had previously been reported as missing.

BUFORD.

Lieutenant Buford was the pilot of a Liberator bomber which was one of the "Jolly Roger" group. He and his crew had made many missions over the enemy lines and were on their last mission before being sent to Australia for a rest leave.

Buford attended Tallulah Falls High school and was graduated from Runhardt College in 1941. He was employed with the Georgia Power Company as an auxiliary operator at Plant Atkinson when he resigned to enlist in the Army Air Corps, September 15, 1941.

He was graduated at Keesler Field, Mississippi, and received his diploma as an airplane mechanic. He completed his preflight training at Maxwell Field, Alabama, his primary training at Carlstrom Field in Arcadia, Fla., and his basic training at Bainbridge.

Buford received his wings and was commissioned a second lieutenant at Turner Field in Albany on April 29, 1943. He was also awarded a medal for being one of the best all-around pilots in his training group.

Lieutenant Buford was stationed at Clovis, N. M., and Pueblo, Colo., for advanced training where he passed his instrument check and was qualified as an instrument pilot on a Liberator bomber. He left for overseas duty last November.

Besides his parents, he is survived by three sisters, Mrs. R. G. Lewis and Mrs. L. C. Sargent, of Atlanta, and Mrs. R. E. Wilbands, of Lakemont; two brothers, Travis Elwood Buford, radioman in the Navy at Rhode Island, and Ronald Buford, of Tallulah Falls; and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Pippin, of Alabama.

THE WORRY CLINIC

Intermarriages Unadvisable, Sometimes Very Harmful

By Dr. George W. Crane.

(Do you know why many states forbid the marriage of first cousins? Yet Professor Knight Dunlap once urged inbreeding in the human species in order to bring to light more cases of deafness, blindness, feeblemindedness, etc. Can you figure out his reasoning, without reading this case record?

"We'd like to get married," he began anxiously, "but our parents feel we should not do so because we are second cousins.

"Naturally, we should like to have a family but if there are any hazards to the health or intelligence of our children, we would either have to forego having children of our own or else break up our romance entirely.

"Dr. Crane, what are the medical and psychological views on the subject of intermarriage?"

DIAGNOSIS

Inbreeding is not hazardous if the ancestries on both sides are good.

But if deafness or feeblemindedness or diabetes or hemophilia or any other recessive traits appear in both ancestries, then the mating of closely related individuals will increase the likelihood that some of their children may be so afflicted.

If the family ancestries even of brother and sister are sound for several generations back, then from the eugenic angle they could much more safely marry than could two total strangers whose respective ancestries both contained recessive defects.

Professor Knight Dunlap, one of our eminent American phychologists, once wrote a challenging treatise actually urging inbreeding. His argument was that such matings would quickly bring to the surface these defective recessive traits. Then, by institutionalizing the latter individuals, we could ultimately get rid of such defects of human inheritance.

INTERMARRIAGE FACTS

This plan is interesting to contemplate though not practical.

In inheritance there are dominant traits and recessive traits. Normalcy seems to dominate abnormalcy.

The normal will then dominate the deafness, and the children of such a couple should all have good hearing.

If, however, both parents had perfect hearing, but their ancestries both had instances of deafness, then one or more of their children might get a double dose of the recessive traits and be born with defective hearing.

INCREASES STRENGTH

Inbreeding increases the tendencies in the parents. If they are strong, healthy and intelligent, then inbreeding helps their offspring.

If both parents are normal but both have inherited recessive traits of deafness, feeblemindedness, etc., then one or more of their children may be deaf or feebleminded.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Constitution, enclosing a long 3c stamped, addressed envelope and a dime to cover typing or printing costs when you seek personal advice or one of his psychological charts.)

Suggestions For Tasty Barbecue

By Sally Saver.

Almost every southerner has a well-developed taste for barbecued meats. His eye running down the list of dinner entrees pauses when it meets the words: "Barbecued Pork Chops," and he says "Ummm, barbecued chops, I believe I'll have those."

There are plenty of pork cuts on the market—roasts, chops, spareribs, the point-cost is low, and you can barbecue the meat in the oven, while the potatoes to serve with it are baking. It is smart and time-saving to make up more barbecue sauce than you need at one time and keep it in a covered jar in the refrigerator. It is excellent on grilled hamburgers, meat balls or frankfurters. Here's an easy recipe for barbecue sauce:

BARBECUE SAUCE

Mince 1-3 cup onions and saute them in 3 tablespoons butter or margarine until yellow, but do not brown them. Stir in 6 tablespoons chili sauce, 1-2 cup cider vinegar, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 2 tablespoons soft brown sugar, 1 1-2 teaspoons dry mustard, 2 teaspoons worcestershire sauce, a dash of cayene pepper, 1-2 teaspoon chili powder. Mix all ingredients well, heat gently to the boiling point, then pour into a jar to be used as needed.

BARBECUED PORK CHOPS

For four small or two large thick chops:

Sprinkle meat lightly with salt, pepper and flour and brown in a little hot fat in a frying pan. Turn the chops only once, browning on both sides. When browned, pour off any excess fat, add 1 tablespoon water, cover the pan closely, reduce heat to very low and cook for 25 minutes. Then spread 1-4 cup of the barbecue sauce well over the chops, cover again and simmer 10 minutes longer. Chops may be cooked on top of stove or in the oven. Serve with baked potatoes or flaky rice.

BARBECUED RIBS

Place ribs in shallow baking pan in 350-degree oven. Bake until crispy brown, basting several times with barbecue sauce.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Monday.—Speaking of short memories in a previous column made me want to give you an illustration of how short they really are!

I wonder how many of you read the following quotation from Mr. Eric Johnston's speech to the publishers and editors a few night ago.

Mr. Johnston is president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. He is a fine man and a courageous one. He would mean to be truthful but his memory is short. Here is the quotation:

"As a people we Americans do not frighten easily. But I would remind you that in the decade before the war we were fed a heavy diet of fear, fear of personal insecurity, fear of another depression, fear of business, fear even of ourselves. Life became just one damned fear after another. The defeatist and pessimist got us so busy fearing other things we forgot to fear that which really is important, and that is big government."

Mr. Johnston forgets to mention the fear of corruption on a big scale, or inefficiency, or uncontrolled world situations, all of which were factors in putting fear in the hearts of people. These fears rose also in business when it was uncontrolled and unhelped by a big enough government. This big fear engulfed us a little more than a decade ago.

Later in his speech Mr. Johnston says that all democratic governments have to be controlled by the people and that we must fear their apathy above everything else. I do not believe that he really fears big business, big government, big armies or navies, big newspapers. I agree that we should fear apathetic people who do not control government or business, who do not watch the public interest in business, in the press, in government and in international relations.

We must remind ourselves, however, that courage and hope have come to the great mass of people since 1933, and fear, which was in the hearts of nearly all the people, has revived only to a limited extent in the hearts of those who fear not the disasters of 1929 and 1930, but the inability to repeat a part of the financial programs of the 20's.

War has put fear in all our hearts for those we love who are in fighting zones, but it has intensified our self-confidence because of our pride in our fighting men and their achievements and the knowledge that as we reach each new crisis at home, the people have so far managed to meet it not only adequately, but magnificently.

Stretch your memories! Where once all were afraid, now very few know fear!

Your Horoscope

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chirologist.

March 21-April 19 (ARIES)—Before 3:03 p. m. is a favorable time for domestic matters and ideas of a progressive nature. Good results should be derived from contacts with large institutions and welfare workers. After 3:03 p. m. you are likely to meet a lack of co-operation. Avoid important plans and keep all your transactions "above board" for you will not have the mental inspiration to see something hidden.

April 20-May 20 (TAURUS)—During the entire day and until midnight favors following routine and attending to unfinished tasks. Avoid risks and going to extremes. An unfavorable day for making contacts and changes.

May 21-June 20 (GEMINI)—Before 2:41 p. m. benefits may be derived through correspondence and general business. The remainder of the day is filled with enervating influences, but with a tendency towards going too far.

June 21-July 22 (CANCER)—If you are filled with moods and encounter those who are grouchy, or melancholy, don't think it will be permanent. The influences predominating throughout the day are apt to suppress optimism and bring forth irritation.

July 23-Aug. 22 (LEO)—Financial risks are under very unfavorable influences today. You may have additional responsibilities either thrust upon you or you may assume them. Be careful how you handle funds and extravagance should be avoided.

Aug. 23-Sept. 22 (VIRGO)—Before 9:01 a. m. may be considered the better part of the day. Between 9:01 a. m. and 6:30 p. m. avoid obligations that may place limitations on you. After 6:30 p. m. you will be inclined to enjoy life. An auspicious day for dealing with affairs that bring contentment and good fellowship.

Sept. 23-Oct. 22 (LIBRA)—You may not feel like remaining in one place long today and business and financial affairs will be subject to delays. Especially true in real estate transactions, domestic and private affairs.

Oct. 23-Nov. 21 (SCORPIO)—Before 4:58 p. m. the completion of things is apt to be delayed. New beginnings now, such as a new business will likely make money, but the overhead will consume the profit. In daily life dealings with others will have an ulterior motive for surface affability.

Nov. 22-Dec. 21 (SAGITTARIUS)—Hold any aggressiveness you may feel today in check. Tread lightly in dealings with superiors and postpone asking favors. If these precautions are observed, ordinary business routine should make progress.

Dec. 22-Jan. 19 (CAPRICORN)—New angles for increasing your income may develop today and gratifying results will be noted. Between 10:56 a. m. and 5:15 p. m. will be opportune hours for contacting powerful people. The evening hours favor relaxation.

Jan. 20-Feb. 18 (AQUARIUS)—During the entire day changes may appeal to you. It will be better to control such suggestions, at least not to heed them. Avoid rashness and this will be a favorable day for dealings with important people and for work in connection with women.

Feb. 19-March 20 (PISCES)—Before 4:51 p. m. is an upsetting period, mentally and emotionally. Avoid important decisions. After 4:51 p. m. will be an auspicious time for financial matters, educational ideas and diplomatic dealings.

Cold Feet

Mother is 44 and in fair health, but her feet are cold most of the time, especially at night. Would your Iodin ration do her any good? If so, would you please send her the instructions? (C. M.)

Answer—Evidently you live in the "goiter belt," in the Great Lakes basin. Do you use plain salt or Iodized salt for cooking and at table? You should use Iodized salt—it tastes the same, costs the same. Send stamped envelope bearing your address, for instructions for taking Iodin ration. Many adults who get insufficient iodine in food or water suffer from cold hands and feet.

GLIMPSES OF HOLLYWOOD

By Inga Arvad.

HOLLYWOOD—His zest for life makes you weak in the knees; his he-man masculinity "turns" the heads of girls on the lot—and probably elsewhere, too; his dancing is the best in existence today, his acting has been called excellent and inspired. His name is Gene Kelly, and he looks as Irish as his name sounds. He is squatty, quick-witted, black-haired, charming and has a smile which starts in the corners of his eyes.

"Cover Girl," with Rita Hayworth, put Gene high up on the Hollywood pedestal. He admits it was "plenty tough" to figure out that "conscience dance."

"I am mighty proud of it," he says, "because every step was measured and there just couldn't be a single mistake or the whole thing would have been silly. But I had all the fun in the world figuring the whole thing out." Then Gene went into some detailed explanation about how he jumped in and out of that window, and how he danced with himself, but never having had a head for the higher sciences of mathematics I shall refrain from confusing you, too.

"Sissy?" he repeats a word of my question in a surprised tone of voice. "Yes, I found dancing the sissiest thing in the world. I hated it in the beginning, but somehow I was rather good at it. As a child, when I went to dancing school, the teachers digcovered I could do the intricate steps without much effort, but I was determined dancing was not my game.

"I am only human and later I changed my mind. When I went to college I tried to make ends meet by doing all kinds of odd jobs from concrete mixer to soda jerker, and it was a terrific strain, until I thought of that dancing stuff and discovered instead of slaving most of the day, I could earn as much and more in a few hours in a night club.

"College became rather secondary, but I got through, and from then on there was nothing else I wanted to do but dance. I started a dancing school, my sisters and brothers joined as instructors, and soon we had large classes. When everything was running smoothly I quit and went to New York. Sure, the stage—that's what I wanted. If course nobody came up to me and said, "'You are the boy I have been looking for,' so I started in the chorus line. But soon I was up front, and then came 'Pal Joey.' The rest you know—I signed up with Metro, and now I am not only a dancer; I am an actor," and Gene pulls himself up in the chair and tries to look very important.

Mind you, he didn't say all this in one breath. He couldn't because during our luncheon everybody from Louis B. Mayer to the messenger girl who carries the phone around to the hungry people in the commissary came up to the table to welcome him back to MGM. There was plenty of handshaking, lots of wisecracks, and everyone who slapped his back was genuinely happy to see him. One of the reasons is that Gene Kelly is devoid of egotism and eccentricity.

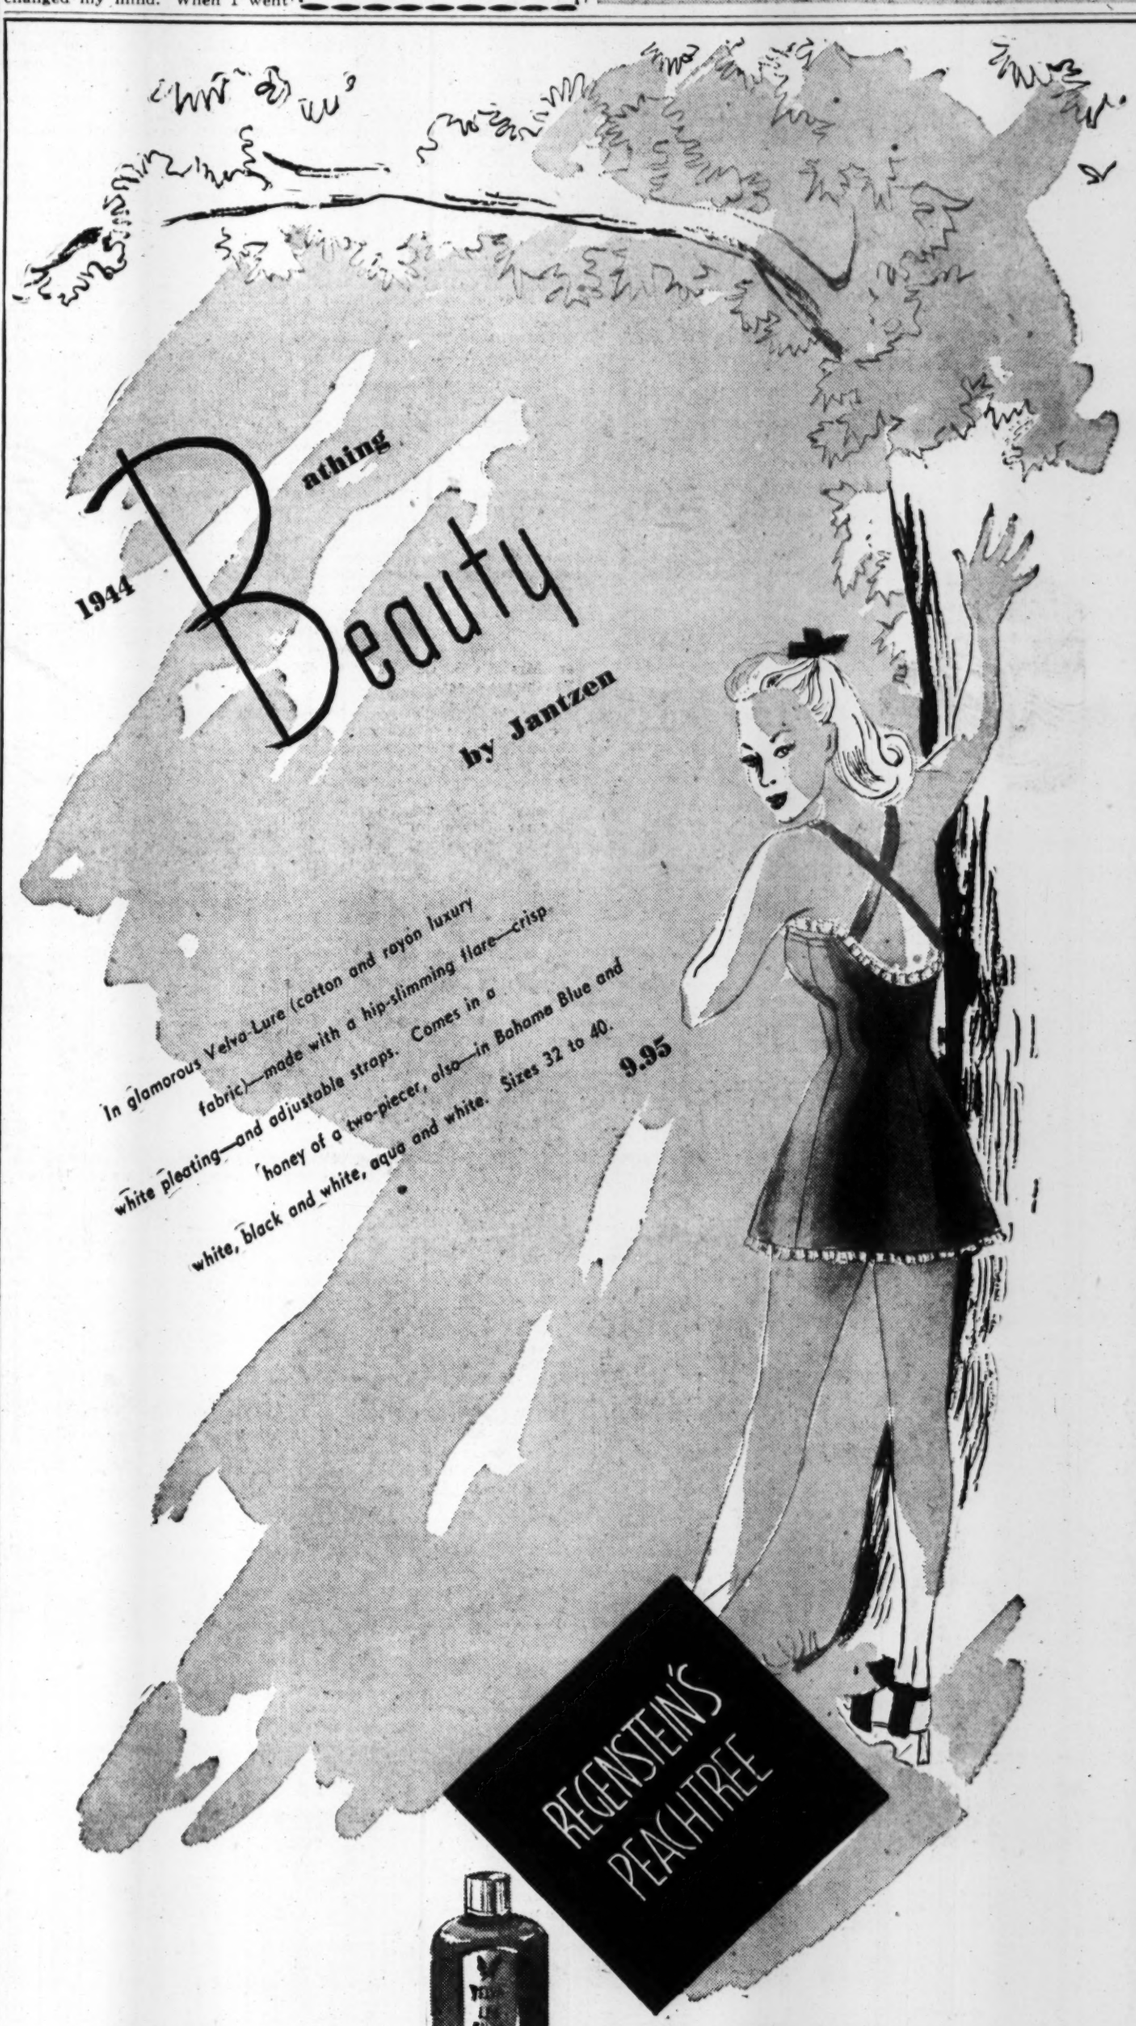

He belongs to the younger set of Hollywood, who seldom are seen at night clubs, who read plenty of good books, who have ideals and live up to them. There is one point on which Gene is slightly daffy—his daughter, Kerry, who is two years old. She can wind him around her little finger. His Sundays he spends with kids in the neighborhood playing ball games.

:-: Just Ramblin' :-:

By MARY HARRIS ROWSEY.

FOR YEARS Elizabeth and Herbert Oliver haunted antique shops in New York, New Orleans and various other cities, as well as here, in quest of a set of pearl-handled dessert knives and forks. The search proved fruitless, and finally they gave up all hope of ever finding one. But week before last, while in New York, they come into possession of one—by accident!

The trip was made especially to attend the spring art exhibits. Elizabeth is well known for her exquisite water colors of birds and scenic oils, which she signs Elizabeth Paxton Oliver. And Herbert is president of the Atlanta Art Association, having toured the shows in the interests of the High Museum. In fact, they were there to choose paintings from the National Association of Women Artists exhibit, together with Mrs. John Markel, noted artist and member of the advisory board of the Association of Women Artists. These selections will be shown at the museum on May 15-25.

It is interesting to note that Elizabeth's oil painting, "Rain at Mayport," was the first item sold from the association's New York show!

They had little time for activities outside the exhibits, and gave no thought to visiting shops. But just before they were to return home, they were walking to one of the shows and happened to pass by an antique shop. They paused to look in the window, and there—reposing in the original box—was the set of dessert knives and forks with pistol-shaped pearl handles, dated 1860!

Villa Rica Sailor Is Reported Killed

VILLA RICA, Ga., May 2.—Buford E. Dodson, machinist mate first class, has been reported killed in action in the Mediterranean area by the Navy Department, Villa Rica's first known war casualty of 400 men in the service.

Dodson was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Dodson, and before entering the Navy two years ago was associated in business here with his father. He has two brothers, both in the U. S. Army, and a sister, Mrs. J. H. Morris, of Panama City, Fla.

Memorial services for Dodson are to be held at the First Baptist church here Wednesday afternoon.

In the Air

BY PAUL JONES

Frank Sinatra, the "hungry crooner" certainly is miscast in his role as "vitamin peddler" on the air. Wonder why his sponsors passed up such physical specimens as Nelson Eddy or he-man Richard Crooks and selected "The Voice" to represent a health-restoring pill firm?

We won't become involved with an answer to that question—there are several—but will string along with the opinion that Frankie, regardless of his physique, can certainly sell a song.

Tonight the singing star will have as his guest Joan Leslie, pretty titian-haired vocalist of the cinema, during his broadcast (WGST at 8 p. m.) from the Hunter College, U. S. Naval Training Station. His audience will be composed of WAVES and SPARS.

George Burns and Gracie Allen, who rate a mere fourth place in our books as comedy teams go, but who must have something on the ball, since their sponsor renewed their contract recently with an increase in pay, will supply the comedy during the "Soldiers With Wings" show over WAGA at 9:30 p. m. today.

Major Frank J. Collins, flying ace who recently returned from the European theater of operations and who was among the first to land in Sardinia after the Italian invasion, will be interviewed on this show.

Selections from Charles Gounod's "Faust," perennial favorite of opera lovers, will be featured on "Great Moments in Music" during the broadcast at 9 p. m. today over WGST.

Jean Tennyson, soprano, and two guest artists, Jacques Gerard, tenor, and Igor Gorin, baritone, will be supported by the "Great Moments in Music" orchestra and chorus under the direction of George Sebastian.

"A Successful Calamity," by Clare Kummer, with Philip Merivale in the starring role, will be staged on Arthur Hopkins Presents, via WSB at 10:30 p. m. . . . Pam and Jerry do some behind-the-scenes conniving with Lieutenant Bill Weigand to protect a murder suspect during Mr. and Mrs. North, WSB at 7 p. m. . . . Harassed Russell Bartlett, widowed father of My Best Girls, lands in the pokey when the good intentions of his 14-year-old daughter, Penny, backfire during the Blue's presentation of the family series at 7:30 p. m. over WAGA. . . . Joseph Dunninger, the master mentalist, attempts to see through stone when he describes three articles deposited in a steel box at the Museum of Science and Industry that have been dropped into a cement block during the show at 8 p. m. over WAGA.

PRE-SCHOOL CLINIC

ALBANY, Ga., May 2.—Scores of pre-school children were examined at the annual May Day clinic held at the Dougherty county courthouse Monday, presiding over by Dr. David Wolfe, new Dougherty county health commissioner, who will come to Albany permanently May 15. In addition to examination of Dougherty county children, done by doctors and dentists who volunteered their services, immunization treatments were given to many.

THOMASVILLE

THOMASVILLE, Ga., May 2.—(AP)—(WFA)—Hog receipts totaled around 2,000 head at eight major southeastern packing plants in south Georgia, north Florida and southeastern Alabama. Packer hog market was mostly steady.

CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, May 2.—Hog prices remained about steady with yesterday's declines today except for weights over 270 pounds which dropped another 15 cents. Medium grade and good and choice steers sold steady, low-choice medium weights were least in demand. Slaughter lambs declined 10 cents, Colorados topped at $16.50.

With the flood of hogs coming into midwestern markets the handling of the over supply is almost as serious as last winter when the marketward movement was at its peak. Some of the more seriously congested markets have placed embargoes on incoming supplies and permit systems are effective at other points. Local receipts of 21,000 were added to by 5,000 held over from yesterday and another 5,000 shipped on direct billings to packers. It was estimated holdovers today would total 10,000. Due to a growing feed shortage, handlers resorted to feeding potatoes to the unsold swine to maintain weight. Prices dropped to the levels of last January, with the top of $13.75 unchanged. Weights over 270 pounds sold for $12 to $12.50 and weights under 200 pounds turned at $11.25 to $13.

Colorado fed steers weighing 1,314 pounds topped at $16.75. The bulk of the crop sold for $13 to $15.75, but some low-choice medium weights brought $1.75 to $16.25 in slow trade.

One package of native spring lambs shared the top of $16.50 with the Colorado fed lambs.

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP)—Selective strength persisted in today's stock market although many leaders were unable to follow through on Monday's last-minute rally.

Prices were higher by fractions to a point or so at the start in fairly active dealings. Volume and trends then began to taper and closing quotations were somewhat ragged.

Bond market developed a tinge of irregularity in late trading today after holding steady in a narrow range most of the morning. Changes both ways were small.

Crackers Win Chattanooga Opener by 4-2 Score

All in the Game

By JACK TROY

A Pensive Angle One angle after another pops up to add to pre-Derby speculation. There is, for instance, the angle of Pensive, pride of Warren Wright's Calumet Farms.

Pensive is trained by canny Ben Jones, who saddled two previous Derby winners—Lawrin and Whirlaway. Jones has been winning every three years—1938, 1941. Is 1944 another Wright-Jones year?

Eddie Arcaro, who rode Lawrin and Whirlaway for Jones, says no. Arcaro insists that Stir Up (Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stables) will be his third winning Kentucky Derby mount.

Arcaro rode Pensive in the colt's first start of the year, a winning one, and has this to say: "They told me not to push him too much, but even so, he didn't seem to have it—at least compared to Stir Up. Wouldn't be surprised if Broad Grin (Stir Up's stablemate) isn't in there close at the end. He likes distance."

Number three is running rampant through pre-Derby speculation. Mrs. Whitney and Jockey Arcaro are bidding for third triumphs.

Opposing them is Ben Jones, who seeks a third Derby win with Pensive. (And, as mentioned, he has been winning every third year.)

Two years ago Eddie Arcaro made the wrong choice of horses. He had his choice of riding either Shut Out or Devil Diver, Mrs. Whitney's coupled entry. Arcaro chose Devil Diver. Shut Out won. This time he has taken Stir Up over Broad Grin and he expects to be wearing a broad grin at the finish.

In Arcaro's words, "Stir Up's no Whirlaway. He's not even a Devil Diver, but he's good enough to beat what's around."

Arcaro will attract the main following on Saturday. But there are many who will string along with Ben Jones and Pensive.

He's No Angel Man or half-beast, the Swedish Angel is an accomplished wrestler, says Promoter Paul Jones, who ought to know. "He is a physical freak and I've seen apes in the zoo I thought were better looking (careful, Paul, the guy can read), but don't discount his ability to wrestle. And he's tremendously strong."

The Angel, who goes up against Irish Jack Kelley Friday night at the city auditorium, is one of those long-armed, big-headed physical phenomenons who looks like a walking copy of the Neanderthal man. And is he ugly! (I expect to be out of the city Friday.)

The case Jones puts up is that the Angel is an attraction both as a freak and as a first-rate performer. He just isn't going to enter the ring and make faces at Kelley. (Even his brightest smile is a grimace.)

The Angel appeared here once before. Fans who saw him in action will recall that he was quite a showman.

Jones is topping his program with the Angel and Kelley. Three other matches will lead up to the grand climax, including Dick Lever and Duke Kapalini, Cowboy Luttrell and Al Massey and Babe Zaharias and Bill Stinson.

Small wonder the fans are flocking back to the auditorium. Jones offers mat entertainment plus.

Strong Fifth District Team Enters State Meet

Schools from the fifth district are expected to make a strong bid for state honors in the Georgia High School Association state meet to be held in Macon this weekend. The winners of the fifth district will compete with winners from other congressional districts for the top honors Friday and Saturday.

Pete Cross, of Avondale, is a very definite threat in the 100-yard dash if he can flash the form which he showed in winning the fifth district title in the fast time of 10.4 seconds. Arthur Cain, of College Park, should be among the top finishers in this event. He has turned in this dash in the time of 24.2 seconds. Tom Strozier, of Druid Hills, will have to improve his time of 57.6 in the quarter-mile in order to stay up with the leaders, but his time in the hurdles should give him an excellent chance to score points for the district.

Both Louie Satterwhite, of Avondale, and Claude Blackman, of Druid Hills, will compete in the high jump at the meet as these two wound up in a tie in district competition at a height of 5' 1". In the broad jump the fifth district will also have two representatives. Robert Ott, of Druid Hills, and Marion Weaver both finished with the mark of 17' 10". The pole vault finds another dual entry due to a tie between Harold Brooks, of Tucker, and Billy Joe Mitchell, of Druid Hills. Marion Weaver will compete in the shot put.

Ed Wilson, of Decatur, who failed to place in the state meet last year with a discus toss of 95' 10", will be back in the event this year. On several occasions this year he has tossed the platter over 100 feet. Hapeville's relay team composed of Joe Lancaster, Walter Benning, Frank Coggin and Bobbie Hayes will carry the district colors in the state meet.

Fort Mac Beaten Again by Lawson

Lawson General hospital downed Fort McPherson by a 3-to-1 count yesterday afternoon at Lawson General Hospital's field as Lefty Dick Douthat bested Bill Ayers in a pitching duel.

Johnny Hill and Luke Appling led the winning offensive with a pair of hits each in four trips to the plate.

Mauney Hurls First Victory On Road Trip

By F. M. WILLIAMS,
Constitution Staff Writer.

ENGEL STADIUM, CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 2.—Joe Engel's Chattanooga Choo Choos won another opening day attendance trophy today when 9,103 fans turned out to see the return of Southern League baseball here, but young Dick Mauney, a rookie right-hander, took all the laurels as he hurled Atlanta's Crackers to a sparkling 4-to-2 victory.

The victory was doubly sweet to Manager Ki Ki Cuyler, who piloted the Chattanoogans to a pennant before going to the Chicago Cubs as a coach.

More than 9,000 members of Engel's knot-hole gang, admitted free of charge, swelled the crowd to about 18,000, one of the largest in Chattanooga history. The paid attendance topped the other so-called smaller cities but was under Atlanta's opening day crowd by some 3,000 people.

MAUNEY'S SECOND WIN

Mauney, racking up his second victory of the season, gave up only six hits and except for the necessity of putting up temporary fences to hold back the enthusiastic knot-holers, would have gotten by with only four and a shutout. Two Chattanooga doubles barely cleared the fence and would have ordinarily been easy outs, and both figured in the scoring.

The game was a thriller, with all scoring in the first four innings. In the fourth, Chattanooga Manager Scrappy Moore yanked his starting hurler, John Wilson, and put in Joe Cleary, who pitched the Choo Choos to an opening day victory in Nashville last Friday. It was a smart move for Cleary shut the door in the Crackers' face, giving them only three bingles and not a single run from there on out.

Good as he was, Cleary couldn't match the brilliant Mauney, who offered the Choo Choos a wide variety of fast balls and curves. Mauney gave up only two bingles in the last five frames and not once was he in trouble.

ERRORS AID SCORING

Chattanooga booted in two runs for the Crackers in the first inning and errors helped scoring the winning tallies in the fourth, although in that frame Atlanta got five hits. Likewise, an error by Ernesto Estevez indirectly contributed to the hometown club's scores, both made in the second frame. So, altogether it was about a dogfall, with Mauney's pitching the deciding factor.

The two clubs meet again tomorrow afternoon with Pedro Jimenez slated to hurl for Atlanta and Ortiz for the Choo Choos.

WARREN WRIGHT'S HOPE—Pensive, shown above with an exercise boy up, is the chief hope of Warren Wright's Calumet Farms in the Kentucky Derby at Louisville Saturday. Trained by the canny Ben Jones, Pensive may follow in the footsteps of Lawrin, winner in 1938, and the illustrious Whirlaway, 1941 winner. As these victories for the Jones-Wright combine came three years apart, Pensive has a good chance to keep this tradition rolling by copping Derby laurels in 1944. (APp hoto.)

Broadcloth Gallops Home In Derby Trial

By ORLO ROBERTSON.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 2.—(AP) Broadcloth, bearing the red and white silks of Mrs. George Poulson, of Los Angeles, moved up among the leading contenders for the 70th running of the Kentucky Derby today when he made a show of five other eligibles in the Derby trial at Churchill Downs.

Never seriously considered by the experts for Saturday's renewal of the $75,000 three-year-old turf classic, the coal black son of Good Goods moved out in front of his rivals at the end of the long stretch and pulled away to win by six lengths.

Nearest to him at the finish was Mrs. Payne Whitney's Broad Grin, odds-on favorite today and hailed as a worthy running mate for Stir Up, the Derby choice. The little Whitney colt had to go all out to grab second money from W. C. Davis' Rockwood Boy. Stretched out behind the three leaders were J. V. Maggio's American Eagle, Neville Dunn's Fire Power and Mrs. C. Stephenson's Marksom.

Alorter, hope of A. C. Ernst of a Cleveland public accountant firm, turned in a fine workout this morning when he stepped the mile and one-quarter Derby distance in 2:07 2-5 with Jockey Johnny Adams in the saddle. But as the son of The Porter pulled out of his gallop he took a couple of lame steps. Trainer Jack Skirvin definitely was worried.

While Alorter's work was the best among the seven that did more than limber up, several other good times were turned in. A. A. Baroni's Autocrat ran the Derby distance in 2:08 1-5; Robert J. Dienst's Brief Sigh covered the same route in 2:09 2-5; W. C. Hobson withdrew Diavolaw from today's Derby trial and then worked the offspring of Diavolo a mile in 1:42 4-5; O. E. Breault's Challenge Me did three-quarters in 1:14 and B. R. Paton's Valley Flares went a mile and one-eighth in 1:59 3-5. The disappointment was the 1:48 2-5 mile run by Dave Ferguson's Bell Buzzer.

Purples Defeat Tech High, 3-0

Steady pitching by Billy Leach and heads-up play afield enabled Coach Bill Orgain's Boys' High sluggers to take a 3-to-0 victory over the Smithies, of Tech High, yesterday afternoon at Ponce de Leon park in the first of their scheduled three-game series.

The Purples tallied an unearned run in the second. Billy Camp singled and Thompson was given life at first as his attempted sacrifice was juggled. Lefty Suggs singled to fill the bases. Manning fanned, but Vallejo hit to short and Camp romped home as the ball was booted.

Three men's softball loops were organized in the City Recreation Softball program Monday night and will begin play May 8 at 7:30 p. m. on the Piedmont and Grady diamonds.

The leagues organized were the City, Atlanta and International. Deadline for entering teams has been set for Thursday. Fees and player registrations must be in by that time.

Officers elected for the season in the City League were Major Moden, president; Woodrow Bartlett, vice president; Jesse H. Heggood, secretary and treasurer; in the Atlanta League, Captain G. G. Ennis, president; W. L. Moody, vice president, and Jesse H. Heggood, secretary and treasurer; and in the International, C. G. Anchors, president; Max M. English, vice president, and Jesse H. Heggood, secretary and treasurer.

Spring Tourney On At Forrest Hills

Qualifying will be held throughout the week, closing Sunday. Match play in flights of eight will begin next week.

This tournament is for regular members, who'll be given an equal chance for the trophies. Forrest Hills play was excellent over the weekend. More than 100 golfers were out Sunday.

Herb Maffett Visiting Atlanta After 12 Years

Lieutenant Herb Maffett, who has been serving in the Bureau of Aeronautics, Washington, D. C., for the past year, is in Atlanta on leave and enjoying his first visit back home in almost a dozen years.

LT. HERB MAFFETT
Serving With U. S. Navy

Maffett, captain of one of Georgia's outstanding football teams, graduated in 1931. He went with the Coca-Cola Company and worked up to a regional manager's position. Then he was called by the Navy. Since leaving Atlanta Maffett has lived in Kansas City, Chicago and Minneapolis.

Vernon (Catfish) Smith, running mate of Maffett's on the Georgia team, is in the army and stationed at Birmingham Air field.

"It's wonderful to get back to Atlanta and see some of my old frriends. I made a trip to Toccoa and saw some of the people I knew when I went to school there. I'm seeing everything and everybody I can in a short time," Maffett pointed out.

Marist, Fulton Win Over Foes

Coach Lawrence Whalen's Marist baseballers climbed all over the offerings of a trio of Commercial High hurlers yesterday afternoon at the Marist diamond and when the shelling finally ceased the Cadets were on top, 26 to 6.

The Cadets tallied 10 runs in the initial frame and again in the eighth. Calhoun McDougal, the Cadet pitcher had a perfect day at bat, cracking out seven straight blows. He also did well on the mound, fanning an even dozen Typists.

Marist will meet Tech High this afternoon at Piedmont Park.

8 Teams Enter G.M.A.'s Relays

Georgia Military Academy's second annual relays, for students of high school freshman age and under, will be held at 2:30 p. m. today at G. M. A., Major M. C. Paget, of G. M. A., announced yesterday.

Eight teams have entered. They are Hapeville, Russell, College Park, Druid Hills, Marietta, McDonough, Joe Brown, and G. M. A. Avondale may field a team, Paget said.

Four relays and the 100-yard dash are the events listed. The relays include the 440, 880 medley, and the shuttle hurdle relay.

Teams having the first and second largest number of points will receive a large banner and contestants winning first, second and third places in their events will receive ribbons.

My best Friends were amazed ... at my improved Looks .. new ENERGY.. PEP!

1—Promote the flow of vital digestive juices in the stomach

2—Energize your body with RICH, RED BLOOD!

THESE two important steps may help you to overcome
Sour Stomach Jerky Nerves
Loss of Appetite Underweight
Digestive Complaints Weakness
Poor Complexion

Improper diet, overwork, undue worries, colds, the flu or other illness often impairs the stomach's digestive functions and reduces the red-blood strength.

A person who is operating on only a 70 to 75% healthy blood volume or a stomach digestive capacity of only 50 to 60% normal is severely handicapped. At such times Nature needs extra help to restore its balance and function properly. Undigested food places a tax on the system...insufficient blood strength is a detriment to good health.

If you are subject to poor digestion or suspect deficient red-blood as the cause of your trouble, yet have no organic complication or focal infection, SSS Tonic may be just what you need! SSS Tonic is especially designed (1) to promote the flow of VITAL DIGESTIVE JUICES in the stomach and (2) to build-up BLOOD STRENGTH when deficient. These two important results enable you to enjoy the food you do eat . . . to make use of it as Nature intended. Thus you may get new vitality . . . pep . . . become animated . . . more attractive!

Build Sturdy Health and Help America Win

Thousands and thousands of users have testified to the benefits SSS Tonic has brought to them and scientific research shows that it gets results—that's why so many say "SSS Tonic builds sturdy health—makes you feel like yourself again." At drug stores in 10 and 20 oz. sizes. ©S.S.S.Co.

Rome Corporal Fights Red Ants, Japs at Emirau

By Sergeant Leodel Coleman, of Statesboro, Ga., a Marine Corps Combat Correspondent.

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC — (Delayed) — Marine Corporal Samuel J. Davis, of Rome, Ga., had to battle with an army of red ants on Emirau island as well as the Japanese.

While tying a radio aerial to a tree near the beach an army of big red ants attacked him. After fighting them off as long as he could he gave up and slid down the tree, to land on the ground covered with ants.

"With the help of some of the boys we got most of them off," Corporal Davis said. "One of them had crawled into my ear and was giving me fits. I started runnnig to the sick bay to have it probed out when the ant came out of its own accord and the battle was over. Later I finished putting up the aerial for the radio in time to listen to the newscast telling about our landing."

After landing, Corporal Davis and some buddies supplemented their field rations with chickens purchaesd from the natives at 50 cents each. "We picked them dry, washed them in salt water, and barbecued them," he said. "They tasted just a little bit like the barbecued chicken we used to get in Georgia."

Before entering the Marine Corps, on July 1, 1942, Davis was manager of the jewelry department of Sterchi Company on Broad street, Rome, Ga.

He graduated from Rome High school in June, 1934. His wife, Anita, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Chapman Jr., lives at 189 Hurt street, N. E., Atlanta, and works with the Fulton National Bank.

He is a veteran of Guadalcanal and Tulagi.
